HONKI! Gek Tessaro

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

This story's about a special mission. But the hero isn't a prince or a knight, but an army of geese who have to fight a monster who's threatening to destroy the city. Martha, a goose, gets a phone call from her beloved niece, Sigismunda: "Danger!" So, one for all and all for one! The geese set out to save her from a terrible monster who's threatening to destroy the city. Could a gaggle of silly geese possibly defeat such a terrible monster? Of course they can! But only if they all work together. The monster will have to say sorry. But that's not enough. He's going to have to rebuild everything he's destroyed.

Format: cm 29.7 x 23 - Pages: 32

A REASON Gek Tessaro

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

The little mammoth is very happy with his life. He likes the mountains, the lakes, and his family. But there are also humans on earth. Annoying, noisy humans. They're the ones who hunt, invent cages, destroy the forest, and poison the river. Dad admits that humans are quite annoying. But he explains to the little one that the world doesn't just belong to the mammoths. It belongs to everyone, and it's nice to share. The little mammoth asks why people exist if they're so harmful. Dad can't answer. But Mom shows them something inside a cave that people can do. And it's wonderful.

Format: cm 29.7 x 23 - Pages: 32

A retelling of the famous tale by the Brothers Grimm. A prince and princess are about to get married, when the prince is turned into a frog. If that wasn't bad enough, the princess now absolutely refuses to kiss him. Frogs are just... so gross, after all. With a princess like this, don't expect a classic ending. Just the same, like any self-respecting fairytale, this story does end with the two living "happily ever after." It's just that they do it in their own particular way....

THE HAPPINESS PRINCE

THE STOLEN SEA

Gek Tessaro

Format: cm 29.7 x 23 - Pages: 32

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

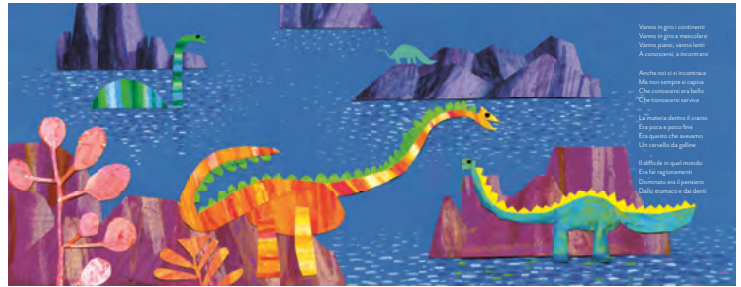

Once upon a time there was a mountain. And on that mountain was a castle. And in that castle lived a king and a princess. One morning, Princess Petunia said to her father, "Dad, see that sea over there? I want it here!" So, King Romualdo had the sea moved to the mountain! For the fish, the ships, and the pirates, the sea became a desert. But even though the fish, whales, and hermit crabs couldn't rebel, the pirates most certainly could...

WITHOUT ME

Gek Tessaro

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

The duckling's day started very badly. No one – absolutely no one! – remembered that it was her birthday. Feeling sad, and a little offended, she packs her things in a bundle and runs away. "Then they will know what life is like without me!" With her mind well and truly made up, off she goes. Along the way, she meets all the farm animals. No one asks her where she is going. No one even notices how lonely and unloved she feels. Waddle, waddle, waddle... Just when she thinks she's lost her way, she's in for a big surprise. And a happy ending!

THIS THEN THAT

Gek Tessaro

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

Together with the big bulldozers, diggers, and dump trucks, the little bulldozer has been digging a hole that's grown bigger and bigger. But she's so full of questions: "What happens to the dirt they dig out? And to the hole?" "The dirt becomes a mountain, then the hole becomes a lake, then, when they're both finished, you can look up and see the sky." This then that! The little bulldozer is helping to build the sky!

OPEN ZOO

Gek Tessaro

All around us, the world of nature hops, trots, neighs, and brays in a bewitching celebration of life and diversity. But when we capture it, all that changes. Everything... falls... silent. After all, nobody stays the same if they're a prisoner. But what if we could capture nature in the pages of a book?

Format: cm 29.7 x 23 - Pages: 32

REMIGIO Gek Tessaro

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

Remigio is a small bat who is tired of living in darkness and feeling ugly. One day, he flies away in search of a different life and ends up in the studio of a painter. The painter paints his wings with bright colors, and Remigio sets off to a meadow feeling proud of his new appearance. However, he soon discovers that the life of butterflies is not as exciting as he imagined. In this colorful and playful book, Gek Tessaro tells a story about the oppressive boredom of superficial beauty while delivering a strong and unforgettable message. An invitation to grow in the awareness of one's uniqueness and to respect one's body, regardless of external standards or approval.

THE COUNTRY OF A THOUSANDS COLOURS Paolo Marabotto

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

Once upon a time, there were five kings who ruled five kingdoms, each one of them a different color. While the White Kingdom was orderly and organized, the people in the Red Kingdom were grumpy all the time. While the people in the Black Kingdom were always scared, the people in the Blue one were always cautious. Finally, the people in the Yellow Kingdom were just so very proud of themselves. The five kingdoms were divided by distrust and high walls. But one day the walls were struck by lightning. The colors mingled together, creating shades no one had ever seen before! A modern fairy tale about joyfully accepting the diversity of other people.

I MISS YOU A WHALE

Marica Rocca, Arianna Alessi

Format: cm 29.7 x 23 - Pages: 32

“All you need is a hug” (Zaheer Ali)

In this book, a rhinoceros and an oxpecker bird are both an irresistible and at the same time unlikely couple. He is big and grey, she is small and colourful. The little bird is exuberant, always wants to play, make funny faces and wants lots of cuddles. The rhinoceros, on the other hand, is more relaxed, less affectionate, and doesn't give his friend the attention she would like. The oxpecker wants to be close the rhino all the time and when she feels she is missing him, she needs to tell him so! And she does this by using something very unusual: The size of animals.

This story helps us learn to communicate the nuances of the intensity of our feelings verbally. From a gnat to a whale, the size of animals becomes the measurement with which to tell the people we love how much we miss them.

LULLABY

Nicola Cinquetti - Gek Tessaro

Children’s imaginations have a cast of thousands, with each character more or less resembling them when they’re happy, sad, angry, sulky... Which one will take center stage tonight?

A tribute to the world of children to help them understand their feelings and, sometimes, even laugh at them.

LOVE HAPPENS

Janna Carioli - Beatrice Cerocchi

Format: cm 24 x 30 - Pages: 52

A child writes his special dream on a paper airplane – all he wants is a mom and dad. Somewhere far away, a couple entrusts their special dream to a red balloon – all they want is a child and to start a family. The couple sets out on a journey, and when the child sees them, his heart tells him that they're the parents he wants to adopt. The couple sees the child – among many – but he's the one who takes them by the hand. Families are like interwoven threads. They've got nothing to do with blood, language, or color. You look at yourself and know you belong. It just happens. It's called love.

FLOUR WOLF

Guia Risari - Alice Coppini

Format: cm 25.5 x 25.5 - Pages: 32

Rights sold in Korean

This story is about a young and cheerful wolf who is different from the rest of the pack, known for their strength and courage. He is called Flour Wolf because he is soft and delicate, and instead of growling or showing aggression, he greets others with a smile and offers them sculptures made of flour. The other wolves in the pack are not happy with his behavior and try to make him become a predator, but he realizes that being himself and spreading kindness is more important.

The story highlights the value of being true to oneself and the power of kindness in creating positive change in world around us.

AN EXTRA SEASON

Elena Lugli and Emilia Li Gotti - Ilaria Orzali

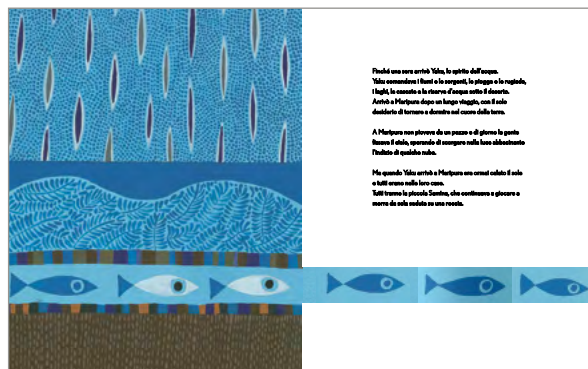

Anna loves the change from one season to the next: snow falling in the mountains, rain caressing the snowdrops on the hills, nature's bright colors in spring. One morning, though, her head starts to hurt. She's scared because it doesn't go away. Mom and Dad take her to the doctor, who reassures her and explains that she'll have to undergo treatment to get better. A colorful tale told in verse, Anna's story comes to life through the changing of the seasons, amid hugs, tiredness, treatment, and changes. A book for every child and family who deal with disease every day. Anna gives every child a hug through the words of her tale. She gives every child her hope. A gentle story told in rhyme that follows the seasons, finally coming to the most moving one of all: the season of healing.

MARIPURA AND THE GIFT OF WATER

Chiara Carminati - Pia Valentinis

She sleeps at night above the roofs of Maripura.

The moon reflects on the silent water of a tiny spring, barely rippled by a breath of wind... This is the story of the village of Maripura; of its source, gifted to little Samina by the Spirit of Water; and of the wicked Beliano, who one day tried to steal the treasure of the source.

A modern fairy tale with the mood and color of an ancient legend.

Highlighting the respect we should all have for water, Chiara Carminati's words and Pia Valentinis' illustrations express the vital importance of water as a precious resource to which everyone has a right.

IMAGINE A PLACE Chiara Carminati - Lucia Scuderi

Teresa osserva una fila di formiche che sale su un muretto.
"Ma sarò da sola?" chiede al papà.
"No di certo!" risponde lui.

"Immagina un posto dove ci si arrampica con le scimmiette, si fanno capriole con gli elefanti, si galoppa con le zebre, si attica con i serpenti, si vola con i pappagalì, e si fanno perfino le bolle con i pesci!"
"Ho capito: allora è una giungla."
Il papà scoppia a ridere.
"Lo è... e non lo è" dice.

RED AS THE SKY

Chiara Carminati - Alessandro Sanna

Poetic verses and watercolours come together and give life to poetry with several layers of interpretation. An illustrated poem divided into three chapters, characterised by primary colours (red, yellow and blue) which grabs the attention of the child, reader and spectator of the world to consider and expose some clichés. "The sky is blue" seems to be an uncontested affirmation, yet our imagination is activated with a sunset that brightens the horizon. Red as the Sky therefore becomes a starting point to ask what other nuances there are in the world.

WHEN THE MOON SPEAKS AT NIGHT

Nicola Cinquetti, Alessandro Sanna

A collection of rhymes in which the musicality of Nicola Cinquetti's words connects with the many images signed by Alessandro Sanna. The noises of nature, their soft whispers that transform with the changing of the seasons, but also the calls of animals and even the sounds of everyday life, also full of voices.

DON'T BE AFRAID

Guia Risari - Daniela Tieni

Format: cm 26 x 26 - Pages: 32

An adult takes a child by the hand and leads them on a journey of discovery through the universe. A phrase marks the way: "Don't be afraid". «Don't be afraid of the sun that scorches the earth, or the universe that stretches out infinitely.» «Don't be afraid of the mountain, with its peaks and paths that overlook the void. Learn to walk and sing, keeping your gaze fixed on the summit.»

This book encourages children to embrace nature with gratitude and participation, as they explore the world around them with wonder and courage. Through poetic and emotional storytelling, it dispels shadows and illuminates the benevolent aspects of nature and existence.

EVERY TIME

Silvia Vecchini - Daniela Tieni

Format: cm 26 x 26 - Pages: 52

Rights sold in Korean

Every time Mom and Dad look at, feed, or hug their baby boy... Every time they talk to him, play with him, comfort him, or call him by name... Every time any of that happens, something special and secret happens inside of them. From love to nourishment, every single thing they give their little boy turns into love and nourishment for themselves. It's all part of an ongoing exchange that helps little ones grow up and opens a whole new world to their parents.

In this book, Silvia Vecchini contemplates these moments of intimate, enriching exchange between parents and their children. Using the simple formula of "Every time I..., it's you who...", she shows just how immense the world of emotions and feelings is that children open to moms and dads.

THE SNOW QUEEN

Sara Marconi - Serena Viola

Format: cm 20 x 26 - Pages: 80

Gerda and Kai have always been friends. But one day a splinter of ice stabs Kai in the heart, freezing it and making him hard and callous. Kai now wants to play by himself in the snow and pushes Gerda away. Just then, the Snow Queen arrives and takes him away. She bewitches him, making him forget who he really is.

Gerda sets out to save her friend. Helped by some exceptional women and kind animals, she arrives at the Queen's palace, where she will defeat her icy desire for perfection with her love, freeing Kai's heart.

Format: cm 20.3 x 21.5 - Pages: 48

There's a baby in Mommy's tummy! How did it get there? And what will happen next? The arrival of a baby brother brings a whirlwind of emotions. It's an experience that's full of questions and fears that aren't always easy for kids to process. In this story, the little heroine goes from being interested in the imminent new arrival to being scared that the intruder will steal all of Mom and Dad's attention, time, and love, leaving nothing for her. In the hearts of parents, though, love doesn't get divided between siblings. It gets multiplied!

LITTLE BROTHER, LISTEN

Sara Ortenzi - Ilaria Orzali

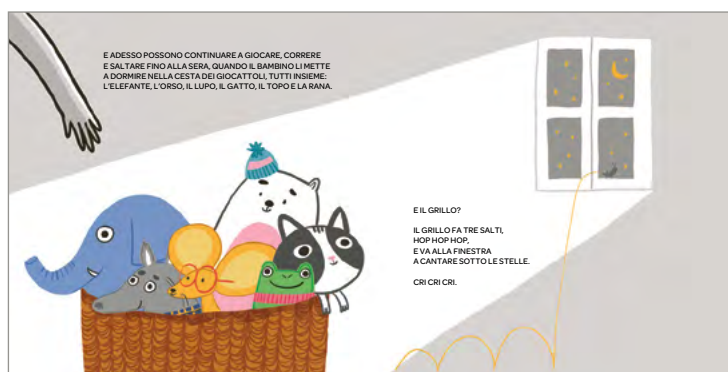

Format: cm 18 x 18 - Pages: 24

The hopping frog hopped right on top of the cricket! But whose fault was it? Each one gets help from bigger and bigger animals to get the other to say sorry. That is, until the child arrives, and everyone has to apologize before going back to sleep. In the toy basket. A nursery rhyme with an irresistible rhythm that teaches kids that they don't need to be afraid of big people.

SAY SORRY!

Nicola Cinquetti - Aurora Cacciapuoti

THE TRUE STORY OF THE UGLY DUCKLING

Nicola Brunialti - Ursula Bucher

Format: cm 20.3 x 21.5 - Pages: 40

The little duckling felt so ugly. He wanted to be a swan, but... Hold it right there! The elephant, with her great big ears, wasn't happy with herself either. Not to mention the giraffe, with her silly long neck, and the rhino, with that ridiculous horn of his! All the animals seemed to have something to complain about! Well, maybe not all of them.... How come that warty toad with those big, bulging eyes is so happy? The little duckling soon discovers that who you are is much more important than how you look.

CROCO-DIAL

Silvia Roncaglia - Francesco Fagnani

Format: cm 23.5 x 23.5 - Pages: 32

Rights sold in Russian and Simplified Chinese

Everyone has called him Croco-dial since he swallowed a hunter's alarm clock when he was a baby. What rotten luck! Every morning at five o'clock, the alarm goes off, which makes all the animals furious! And it's impossible to go hunting with that ticktock ticktock always scaring away his prey! Feeling sad and rejected, he runs away. But he ends up tripping over and falling down a waterfall. After a dizzying dive and some boisterous bouncing, the alarm clock flies out of his mouth and ends up... getting swallowed by an armadillo. Poor Alarm-dillo!

PURRFECT POEMS

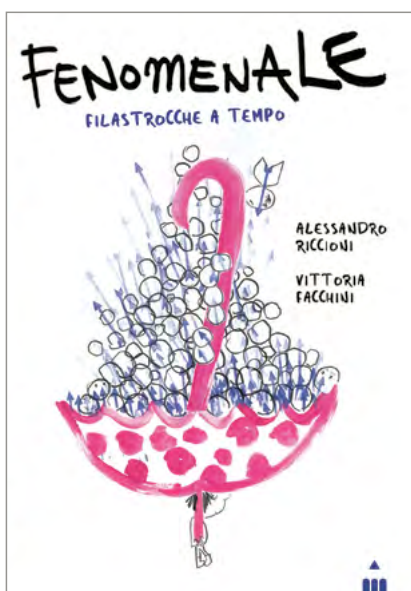

Chiara Carminati - Alessandro Sanna

Format: cm 17 x 23 - Pages: 48

Gentle, snooty, funny, aloof, elegant, delightful, unpredictable, secretive... and always irresistible. Cats portray different human types in a kaleidoscope of situations.

There's the poet cat who softly purrs his poems to the moon, the photographer cat who photobombs all his own shots, and the artist cat who – in a tribute to Lucio Fontana – gives all his canvases a good scratch. There's the kitten hiding in a shoe ready to ambush you, the romantic cat, and the cat who's as gentle as a cloud.

PHENOMENAL

Alessandro Riccioni - Vittoria Facchini

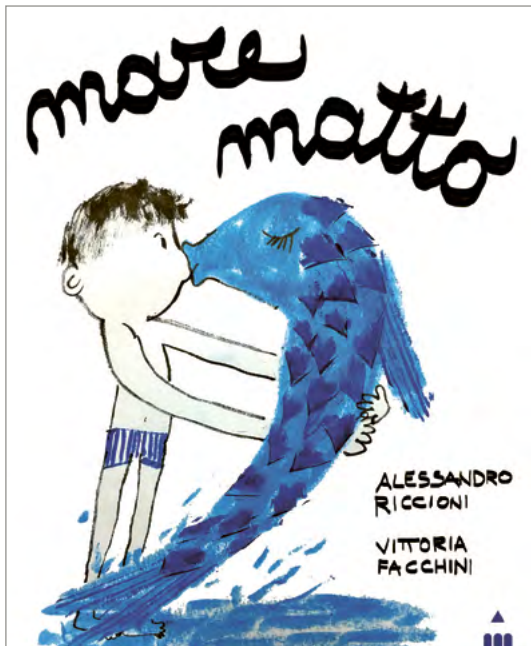

Format: cm 17 x 23 - Pages: 96

A book for people who are always either hot or cold, who live in the mountains or in a valley, and who live in the city or the country. A book packed with as many surprises as a magician's top hat. These "meteorological" nursery rhymes are presented in a bright, lively book to be enjoyed in any season.

THE STAR

Matteo Corradini - Vittoria Facchini

Rights sold in French

As part of the extermination project carried out by Nazi Germany and its allies between 1935 and 1945, many Jews were forced to sew a yellow six-pointed star onto their clothes. Millions of these stars followed the fate of their owners, with some now the only thing that remains to bear witness to the mass murder. In this book of poetry and illustrations, the star is the narrative voice – the stars of the boy and girl, the rabbi, the violinist, the teacher, the bookseller....

DORA AND THE KINDOGRE

Matteo Razzini - Sonia M. L. Possentini

Per Dora quella fu la prima di tante poesie ricevute da quel belacco signore, quindicimilacinquecentocinquantesime: collezionate in ventin'anni, a voler essere precisi. E sulla "questione Franco", le cose erano sempre state molto chiare fin dall'inizio. Non c'era dubbio alcuno che quell'uomo fosse un Gentilorco e poco importava se le persone continuavano ostinatamente a chiamarlo matto o rimbambato. Franco passava le giornate attraversando strade, piazze e giardini della città e scrivendo frasi magiche che regalava alle persone che incontrava. La poesia fioriva in ogni angolo e la gente si sentiva felicemente viva.

PISTACHIO STEPS

Chiara Lorenzoni - Francesca Dafne Vignaga

Format: cm 24 x 30 - Pages: 32

Each season has its own colors, sounds, tastes, and smells. With all the beautiful things it brings, each season has its own feelings to recognize, appreciate, and enjoy. And there's no simpler nor more fun way for children to appreciate this than through nursery rhymes. A picture book with a quirky title, twelve nursery rhymes, and the same number of illustrations to teach children about autumn, winter, spring, and summer, and their order. A perfect picture book for reading aloud. In each rhyme, the sounds of the words reflects a feeling typical of each season: flakes of frost for cold of winter; warm wind for the festive atmosphere of certain summer events; whispers for the sound of autumn leaves...

HORACE THE OWL

Anna Laura Cantone

Format: cm 24 x 24 - Pages: 32

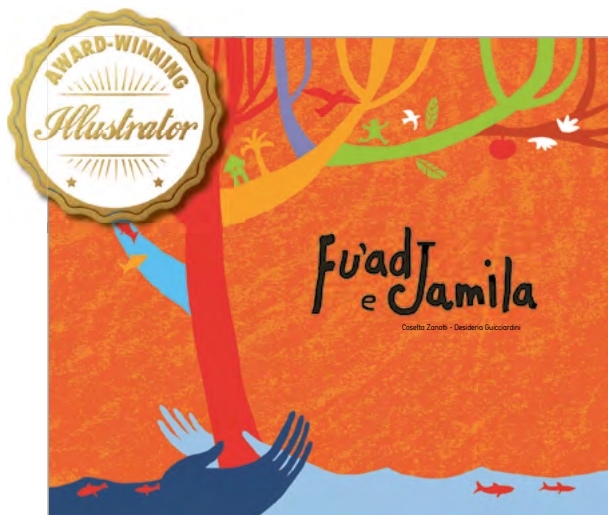

In a splendid FOREST there are two groups of ANIMALS, which are close but separated by a river. The inhabitants of each village don't know what is on the other side: no one has ever looked past the river. When a tree holds its SHADOW over the two villages and it ruins their harvest, the animals get scared and begin to go to war. Only the intervention of the wise HORACE THE OWL can bring PEACE to everyone.

Themes like the war, cultural diversity and acceptance are difficult to explain in words: this Silent Book does it with the universal language of images.

FU'AD AND JAMILA

Cosetta Zanotti - Desideria Guicciardini

format: 30.5 x 24 cm - pages: 32

A young couple expecting a child leaves home, along with lots of other people, in search of a better life. Across the sea, a country is waiting for them where everything is possible. A place where wars, and even misery, don't exist. Of course, they must cross the waves, but love can be as big as the sea. A touching story that, in language suitable for children, explains the tragedy of refugees forced by war to flee their homes while asking us to question ourselves about our own responsibility.

THE TEMPEST

I WOULD LIKE A SLOWING-DOWN TIME

Luigina Del Gobbo - Sophie Fatus

Format: cm 23.5 x 23.5 - Pages: 40

There's hectic time that passes in a flash, and slow time that savours everything we do and feel. This rhyme, nuanced and poetic, entreats us to go back to the slower rhythms of nature and discover again the pleasure of doing things without being in a hurry; so we fully enjoy every moment and learn to listen and be listened to.

CARAVAGGIO

Luisa Mattia - Lorenzo Terranera

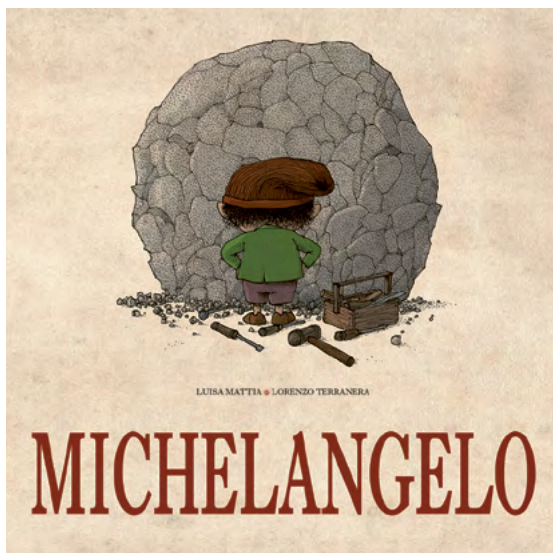

Format: cm 26 x 26 - Pages: 52

Caravaggio tells his own story – his apprenticeship in Milan, the move to Rome, and his rise to fame. Like no one before him, he found inspiration for his paintings in the bodies and eyes of laborers, fishermen, cart drivers, and people in taverns. He turned his own house into a stage, using its black walls and ceiling, windows, and candles to create games with light and backdrops for his models. And fame did nothing to tame his wild nature or satisfy his genius, as rich in contrasts as the brilliant use of light and shade that makes his paintings unique. "I looked for peace in painting because I found none in life."

IT'S NOT LIKE HE'LL EAT YOU! Nicola Cinquetti - Matteo Spadoni

Format: cm 23.5 x 23.5 - Pages: 32

Paolino plays football. Alone. He is really good and is able to make some great kicks against the wall that could instill fear into the entire national team. This time, instead of kicking the ball against the wall, he took out the entire window of the house in front of him.

He should go and say sorry. But it's not easy: Paolino is really shy and it's not just any window or any house. We are talking about the house of Mr Pallettoni, a tall man, big, with a beard, he's got a deep voice that seems like the voice of a bear, or that of an ogre. Better to run away... His mum will help him understand the importance of saying sorry and eliminating his fears by saying: «It's not like he'll eat you!»

Format: cm 24 x 30 - Pages: 32

A Christmas story inspired by the many refugee landings on the Italian coast. The connecting thread running through the story is welcoming people. The rescuers and migrants who move into the tent city near the port become the characters in a modern-day retelling of the nativity, recalling the shepherds and wise men of two thousand years ago.

BABY JESUS CAME FROM THE SEA

Mariella Panzeri – Silvia Colombo

Format: cm 24 x 30 - Pages: 40

Giorgio is a boy who dreams of meeting a knight who can fearlessly face dragons and tempests. He grows up but still doesn't meet any knights. He then goes to fight a war, still hoping to meet a knight so they can do great deeds together. Instead, he discovers that the only adventure worth living for is love. But the rest of the world wants war. One day, he comes to a faraway city, where some of the people are forced to wear a yellow star while others persecute them. Giorgio wants to help them, so he goes to the ambassador, who names him Knight-Protector of the Stars. Every day after that, Giorgio rescues some of the people with the star and hides them in a tower.

STAR THIEF
Sebastiano Ruiz Mignone
Giulia Rosa Cardia

Format: cm 21 x 25 - Pages: 40

The gentle story of two children who, unaware of the tragic events going on around them, have a friendship that's so strong that they dream of flying together among the stars. Andrea and David love to dream up wonderful lands and to draw skies full of stars. One day, though, those stars start appearing on the streets of Germany. David has one sewn onto his coat, and Andrea wants one, too. Andrea, though, could never have dreamed how that star, so different from the ones in the sky, is about to change his destiny.

A DRESS FOR HANNAH
Myfanwy Woods-Jack - Valeria Fogato

Format: cm 15 x 15.5 - Pages: 24

Rights sold to P.R. of China

Hannah is the youngest child in a large family. She wears her sister's blouses, her brother's dungarees and her cousin's wellington boots. Will she ever manage to have a dress all of her own? The story invites children to solve their problems by making creative use of their resources and by developing their imagination.

THE LEGEND OF COCOA
Alessandra Vassallo

Format: cm 24 x 32 - Pages: 12

The cocoa tree is magical. With its big, colorful fruit and seeds used to make delicious chocolate, it grows deep in the jungle. Wonderful fables are told about its origins. This is one of them.

IN THE DARKNESS
Nicola Barca - Michela Baso

Format: cm 21 x 29.5 - Pages: 48

In the Darkness: BULLYING, DIVERSITY, FEAR, CHANGE. A graphic novel that uses emptiness and darkness to express emotions, fears, and hopes. Eyes full of darkness and a heart full of darkness are very different things - although both can scare you. The light of hope, though, is even stronger than the light of the sun and can illuminate even the darkest soul.

Format: cm 22.5 x 32.5 - Pages: 40

Parrots in Tibet, ibexes in Brazil, seals in Venice, whales in London, crocodiles in the desert... these are just a few of the Displaced, animals that find themselves – voluntarily or not – having to adapt to new habitats, with all the advantages and disadvantages that it can bring. Often this has unpredictable and even upsetting results.

With its light, fun rhymes, this book looks at the issues of migration and multiculturalism.

THE DISPLACED

Mia Lecomte - Andrea Rivola

Format: cm 17 x 24 - Pages: 40

After waking up from a long, long sleep, King Firstoff wants to put his kingdom back in order. So, he issues lots of orders, which his subjects carry out without question. But at what price? The king eventually realizes what he's done through the eyes of his son, Prince Fidget, who becomes the voice of the rebels. This fairytale is set in a small, hybrid world where nature collides with humans and their thirst for control; where childlike, artistic, and spiritual thoughts try to dialogue with adult thoughts driven by power and profit; and where the path to follow is resistance.

This book talks about the existential importance of wonder by creating wonder itself.

IN THE KINGDOM OF ALLORNOTHING

Claudia Mencaroni - Serena Mabilia

THE MOM FACTORY

Claudia Mencaroni - Giulia Cregut

Format: cm 24 x 33 - Pages: 32

Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

Nino has quarreled with his mom yet again. She won't let him out to play! He decides he wants a new mom! So, his mother takes him to the mom factory to let him choose one that's a better fit. But is a new and perfect mother really what he wants? He slowly finds the answer as the factory's complicated gears start turning... A book that looks at what almost every child has wanted at one time or another: a change of parents. It takes a big effort for kids to understand what being a parent is all about. But it's an effort that's an important part of growing up.

LENTIL. THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD

Claudia Mencaroni - Luisa Montalto

Format: cm 29 x 23 - pages 40

Lentil is a little girl who lives on the other side of the world from the far-away world that Mom and Dad know and still feel attached to. Everything in their home speaks of that far-away place, but there are no words that can really bring it here. So, what's the world like on the other side of the world? With a suitcase full of imagination, games, and dreams, Lentil sets off to answer her question.

Wallpaper Books - Libri da Parati®

SEB AND THE SHELL

Claudia Mencaroni - Luisa Montalto

Format: cm 70 x 100

An imaginary friend, a brother who flew away, a friend who left for some far-off place – Seb is all those things. Or he could be. A book about that unique bond that can only exist between children, whether they're nearby, far away, or have never met. Set somewhere between dreams and reality, the story looks at absence through words and its illustrations created using traditional Chinese bamboo brush painting.

THE GIFTS OF THE GODS

Giuseppina Norcia - Marcella Brancaforte

Format: cm 70 x 100

Athena asks her father, Zeus, to gift her a magnificent hilltop city where she wants to build her temple. But Poseidon also wants the city. So, Zeus comes up with a challenge: "The one who gives the people the most wonderful gift will become the god of their city. They will be given every honor, and the city will take their name."

The book imagines the origins of Athens, connecting them, through words and illustrations, to the origins of the tree that symbolizes the Mediterranean region better than any: the olive tree.

Shortlisted for the 2018 Italian Andersen Award - Best Artistic Book

THE PRINCESS WHO WROTE

Nerina Fiumanò - Angelo Ruta

Format: cm 70 x 100

Once upon a time there was a princess. She was young, beautiful, and loved by all. But more than anything, she loved to be alone and write. Whenever anything troubled her, moved her, or surprised her, she'd write it down. Somehow it made the whole world more peaceful. One day, though, her kingdom was invaded. She was put in prison with nothing but a pen. From that moment, she never stopped writing. She wrote about her dress, her shirt, her feet, her hands, every part of her body... With everything captured by her words, she kept her whole world alive.

IT WAS A CLOUD

Ilaria Cairoli - Alberto Casagrande

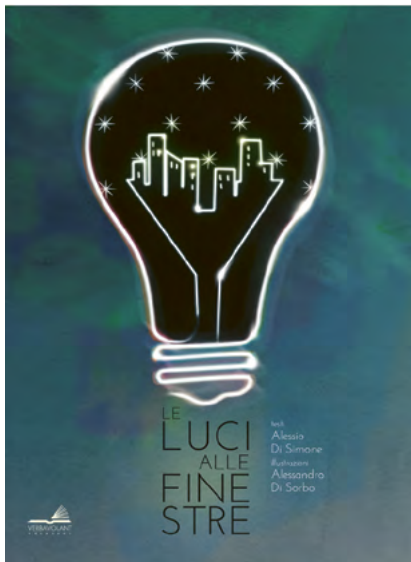

Format: cm 70 x 100

An ancient and mysterious civilisation has secretly been living on Earth for millions of years: The Glyphs. They are the ones who find a strange cloud in the mountains: it isn't just any water vapour, that mass hides potential. The Glyphs decide to use the matter from this cloud to build something just as impalpable, but essential for those strange two-legged species who have been living on Earth for some time: ten, a hundred, a thousand signs to define their thoughts, their stories, their emotions. And it is in this way that the characters that make up the written language are born, with all their infinite expressive possibilities, artistically represented by the spectacular alphabetic-chromatic explosion of the final poster.

THE LIGHTS IN THE WINDOWS

Alessio Di Simone - Alessandro Di Sorbo

Format: cm 70 x 100

When he was young, my grandfather was a great explorer. He went to so many places. Arabia. Iceland. Asia. Africa. This is the story of one of his journeys. But told backwards. One night in a big apartment block, a grandfather sits in the window with his grandson and tells him a story. As the story becomes more and more astonishing, the building, its windows, and its rooms all begin to magically change, following his journey around the world step by step. By the end, everything disappears to reveal the breathtaking spectacle of the star-filled sky, made even more special by the boy's imagination. An illustrated story that plays with the potential of the book's format, with the final poster-sized page using phosphorescent printing to make the constellations glow in the dark.

THE CLOSED SEA

Alessio Di Simone - Alessandro Di Sorbo

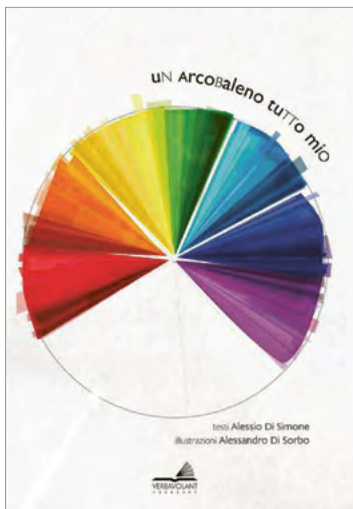

Format: cm 70 x 100

A boy who is now grown, a sea that is far away, a beached whale that resurfaces from the waves of time. This is the open sea, where only ships go. There is no space for memories, that are closed in the sea that you take with yourself. Years pass by, life changes, expectations and nostalgia are themes of this story, which seems small, simple and familiar: there is more beyond the words, and often also silence speaks intensely and makes itself heard.

Concertina books - Leporello

Concertina books (also known as Leporello) have a long tradition. At VerbaVolant, we've used this format in unusual and different ways, experimenting with papers, dimensions, and even how the books are read

A RAINBOW OF MY OWN Alessio Di Simone - Alessandro Di Sorbo

Format: cm 15 x 22 close, cm 250 x 22 open

Mom comes home from work to have lunch with me and then goes back out again. Outside, it's raining and gray as I wait for Mom and Dad to come home. I've got some history and math homework to do, but nothing difficult. And the rain keeps falling. I put a cup out the window to fill with water, and the storm ends. There's a new rainbow, and it's all mine. The journey can begin. A very personal look at rainbows as part of childhood imagery, told through the silence of colors, the little things with huge importance, and daily routines, which can change from black to white by shifting your perspective – even by just a little.

IN A CIRCLE Alessio Di Simone - Alessandro Di Sorbo

Format: cm 15 x 22 close, cm 250 x 22 open

A book that goes around and around, following the moods of nature, time, and life. Two large eyes open and close, taking in what's around them as they follow the changing of the seasons, from spring to summer to fall to winter. There are migrating birds, sap oozing from trees, falling leaves, the icy wind off the sea. Then there's a tree, the gentle and unaware protagonist of the story, forever in change. Created on two sides – like the A and B sides of an old record – In a Circle is an illustrated story that can be endlessly flipped, starting again each time in a different place. Just like the changing seasons, which repeat and repeat, always the same but endlessly different.

THE CYCLE OF LIFE

Lorenzo Naia - Roberta Rossetti

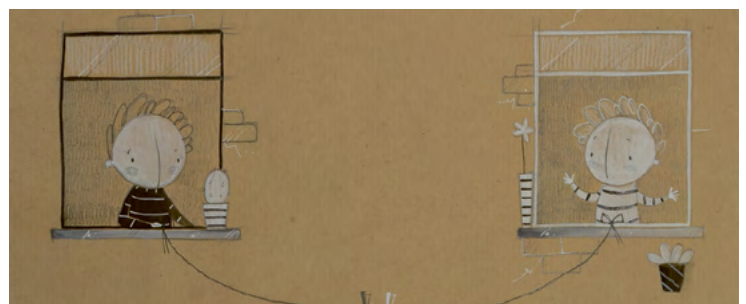

Format: cm 70 x 100

A trilogy dedicated to the cycle of life. Apprehension, bewilderment, joy, restlessness, desire for change, and melancholy for what gets left behind – on the eve of any important event, many conflicting emotions flow through us, making the wait itself something meaningful. Then as the colors of the present, of our slow, silent everyday life, and the poetry of passing time, apparently unchanging but different in every moment. The nuanced shades colors of the natural images that accompany these Wallpaper Books® are the perfect visual expression of all these feelings. The trilogy is now completed by the third book, "Again".

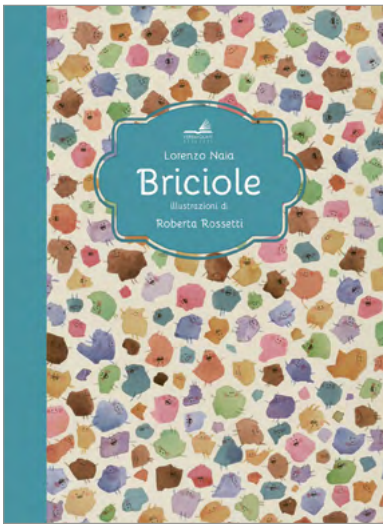

THE WINDOW

Lorenzo Naia - Roberta Rossetti

Format: cm 16 x 32 - Pages: 60

"The street is horizontal; the buildings are vertical."
 The city can sometimes make us feel small and set apart. Just like the character in this story, who watches and records everything from his window up on the eighteenth floor. But a "long distance" meeting with a new friend unleashes his imagination and helps them both see the city in a different way. From up in their windows, endless worlds burst open. An invitation to go beyond appearances and open ourselves up to new discoveries, because learning to look for beauty around you is the first step in finding beauty within yourself.

Format: cm 21 x 27 - Pages: 64

It's Paris in the early 20th century, and countless cake crumbs feel overlooked and rejected. They wander forlornly around the city, not understanding the reason for their sad fate. Sitting at the Jardins des Tuileries, Pepito, a churro crumb, gives precious advice to some orphaned dough crumbs. He takes them to meet Bibì, a hardworking pastry chef who's down on his luck and not getting enough customers. All the crumbs unite in one of Bibì's dough mixes, giving life to a very special cake. And the first person to taste it is one of the hardnosed food critiques from the prestigious magazine Paris Gourmet. An adventure through the districts of Paris to discover the wonders of French pastries, complete with sweet illustrations and recipes for the most famous delights.

CRUMBS

Lorenzo Naia - Roberta Rossetti

Format: cm 17 x 24 - Pages: 96

A collection of fairy tales, with female protagonists, whose plots unfold in different ways from what we're used to. After all, fairy tales come from an oral tradition, and have always been reworked, revisited, and retold. This collection of tales, though, sets out to remind every boy and girl that their own story should never be taken for granted, should never be inflexible, and should never be decided

RED TALES

Lorenzo Naia - Roberta Rossetti

Format: cm 24 x 33 - Pages: 40

HOW SMALL IS THE WORLD

Angelo Mozzillo - Ilaria Perversi

Giants lead such odd lives. For them, the world is tiny. With just a step, they can go from one continent to another. But the world's also full of things that get in the way of their great big feet: crowds of cyclists in Amsterdam, the tip of the Eiffel Tower, the canals of Venice... Maybe a pair of boots designed just for them could help? The giant in this story tries on a pair and decides he

DOES MIMI LIVE HERE?

Angelo Mozzillo - Ilaria Perversi

Dante, a very ordinary chameleon, lives a very ordinary life in the middle of an ordinary countryside. Today, though, is going to be anything but ordinary. Today he's going to the city for the first time to surprise his best friend, Mimi! Finding his friend among all those houses, all those streets, and all those animals (with all their strange ways) won't be easy! An effervescent adventure story for the youngest children, who'll have fun discovering the characters hiding among the pages of the book.

UGLYCAT

Silvia Oriana Colombo

Format: cm 27 x 23 - Pages: 32

Uglycat is part of Mamacat's beautiful feline family. He got his name because of his messy, dirty-looking fur. And he believes it. He thinks he's so ugly that he doesn't deserve the love of his mother or siblings. So, he runs away. But events take an unexpected turn, and his homecoming is faster (and happier) than anyone could have guessed.

Featuring delightful watercolor illustrations, this book looks at the difficult subject of self-acceptance to help kids understand and accept their own ways of being different.

HURRY UP, LISA!

Silvia Oriana Colombo

Format: cm 28 x 21 - Pages: 32

"It's late!"

"Come on! Get a move on!"

"It's time to go, Lisa!"

"Quick! School will be over at this rate!"

There's always a lot of cuffuffle in the morning at Lisa's house. Time just rushes by for her parents and siblings. Far too fast for little Lisa, who'd prefer to spend time in her world of games and imagination. Adult time and child time pass at different speeds. They're two different ways of living. And sometimes that means big arguments and little dramas. Is there some way to stop time? To slow down the clock? Just for a moment? A book that combines prose and rhyme, reality and imagination, the world of children and the world of parents.

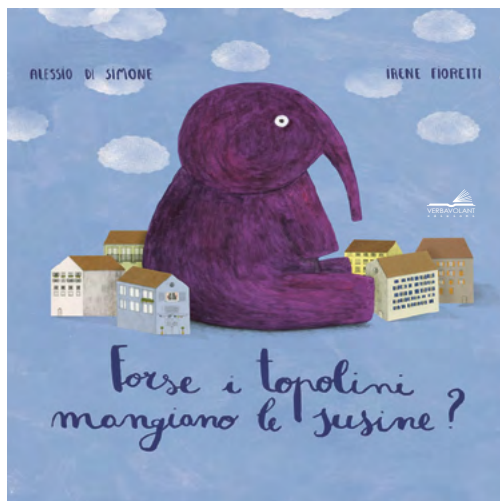

THE ELEVATOR

Daniele Bergesio - Olha Muzychenko

Format: cm 20 x 32 - Pages: 28

It's a summer day like any other, and little Iris has nothing to do. But everyone else – Mom, Dad, Grandpa, and her cousin – is busy doing something in her family's big home. So, Iris decides to pay each of them a visit, taking the elevator from floor to floor. At each stop, she learns something new: Mom teaches her about teamwork; Grandma, about memory; Grandpa, about searching...

DO MICE EAT PLUMS?

Alessio Di Simone - Irene Fioretti

Format: cm 22 x 22 - Pages: 32

Everybody knows that elephants are gigantic and gentle. But hardly anyone knows that, a very long time ago, they were tiny. Smaller than a mouse. Maybe about the size of a plum! And they had quite an appetite, for plums in particular! And it was hard to overestimate this appetite of theirs.... An odd little tale, a lively and surreal story, that leads readers into an intriguing, hilarious world by turning our certainties on their heads.

THE BANANA WHALE

Maria Lucia Riccioli - Monica Saladino

Format: cm 20 x 20 - Pages: 48

Nana is a rather special whale. She was born on the night of a full moon and is as yellow as a banana! Her color creates a few problems for her with the other sea creatures. But when she's brave enough to save the sea from a terrible danger, everyone decides she's a heroine! A gentle adventure story for learning about the value of diversity and the importance of protecting the marine ecosystem. It ends with a fun invitation for even the smallest child to respect the sea and its creatures.

MAKE A WISH

Anna Masucci - Donata Curtotti

Format: cm 27 x 23 - Pages: 24

Two strangers meet on a stormy night of shooting stars. The same wish and the same lucky star send them on a journey. A long, difficult journey with an apparently impossible goal. But once they reach it, it will change their lives. A story told with just a few words but lots of silences. A love story with amazing characters, worlds, and adventures, told through wire art images.

Small, hairy and bundled up in yellow raincoats: Ed and Wyn are a couple of unusual detectives. When a strange, green rain threatens to flood Blueberry Village, they begin to look for incontestable clues....

After they have almost arrived at their destination, they discover the origin of the strange rain, it is BIG... HAIRY... GREEN... WITH A BIG NOSE... it is something that is sociable and sensitive.

Among the unusual characteristics: the monster has no sense of orientation and, if he gets lost, he can cry uncontrollably for days.

Mystery solved! Gherkin is only a pup who has lost his way. There is a new mission to complete: to take him back to his parents.

An apparently simple story that's actually about friendship, laughter, learning, and having fun.

- A funny and irreverent story that will make children laugh about irresistible topics: boogers, pizza and stink bombs!
- Eccentric characters, sweet and funny, who have a very difficult task: to improve their investigative abilities. Young readers will become involved in the challenges the characters face
- Worldwide rights available except for French and English ww

The Journey of a Kiss

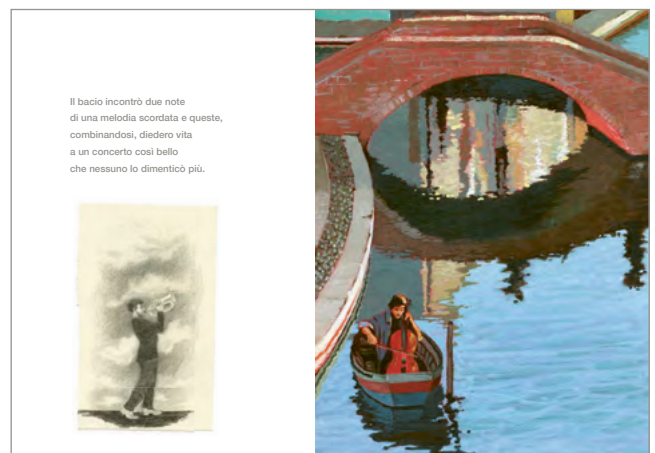

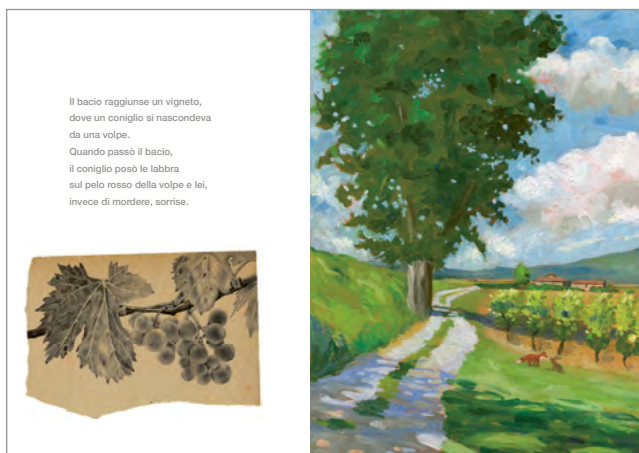

66L-23-B

Format: cm 17 x 23 - Pages: 36 - All Age
Hardcover
Full-colour illustration by Elena Baboni
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

A new picture book from the author of La Terra Respira. A poetic text about love calming conflict as it moves through the countryside and cities, uniting people, animals, and things.

Two petals touch to give life to a kiss that's carried on the wind. And from this chance meeting, a journey begins. Delicate, silent, but strong enough to travel for miles, the kiss is carried over ponds, vineyards, town squares, and trails on a gust of irresistible harmony. The kiss travels a long, long way, bringing peace to all people and all countries. Its final destination is the roof of a house. From there, riding on an unstoppable stream of love, the kiss lulls a crying child to sleep with its song.

- Involve everything in a dance of interactions and connections that transform things that might seem distant into something close
- A message of hope and utopia at a time when disagreement and aggression are seen as the only possible responses to difference

One hundred and forty years after Collodi's book was first published, here's a faithful retelling of this timeless classic that mixes the musicality of rhyme with the immediacy of a graphic novel.

With lively, direct language, and words and idiomatic expressions that have become a part of the collective imagination, the book recalls – and never betrays – Collodi's original writing style but merges it with Attilio's gentle humor and rhymes.

Each page contains a scene from the story accompanied by a rhyming quatrain in CAPITAL LETTERS. From the thoughtful Geppetto to the fearsome Fire Eater, the Field of Wonders, and the Land of Toys... the story unfolds like a novel in images – a surprising anticipation of modern graphic novels.

- To mark Attilio's 100th birthday, this exquisite collector's edition is for reexperiencing one of the most important Italian works for children

A painter, designer, and illustrator, Attilio comes from Genoa in Italy. One of the most dearly loved authors by generations of children, he made his return to the publishing world with the series Le Mini Fiabe (Lapis), winning – all in 2017 – the Premio Andersen, the Premio Nati per Leggere, and the Premio Microeditoria di Qualità. The series has been translated into ten languages.

KING OF THE FOREST

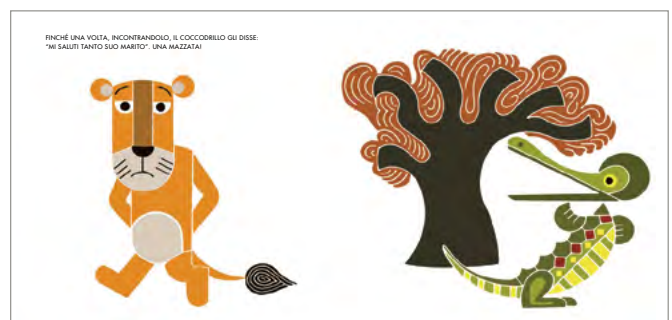

Each and every morning, in Africa, a lioness wakes up, and knows she will have to run faster than her partner, who has a worrying dilemma and goes around the house without stopping. The problem is quickly understood: the day of voting nears to elect the king of the forest, and the lion really wants to candidate himself. Only that, in that moment, he didn't have a mane, accessories or clothes that were able to provide to him that authoritative and masculine air that a respected sovereign should have. Judging from his appearance, no one would be able to tell him from his other half! In these conditions, governing and being serious would be impossible...

The Surprise Show

Animals don't have fun at the circus. For this reason, Attilio tells and draws a very special circus where there are no cages, chains or mean tamers, and... NOTHING IS AS IT SEEMS. It seems like we see horses, giraffes, elephants and lions; but they are actually expert trapeze artists, jugglers and colourful clowns that accompany us to the final surprise that you would have never imagined.

An original story in rhyme, with a succession of artists, circus artists and plot twists to observe the circus from another point of view.

Animals in Rhyme

52L-22-B

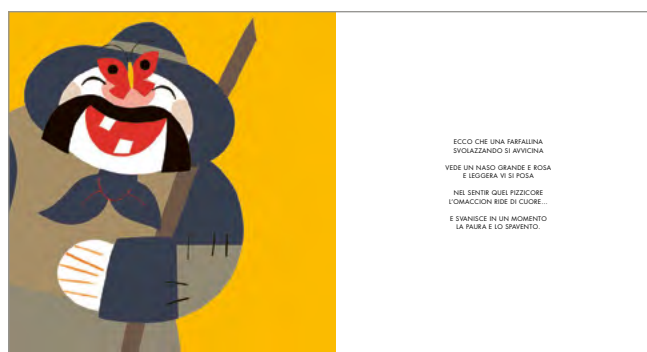

Short stories in rhyme told from the point of view of the main characters: animals. Tiny tales about simple, everyday situations told with a gentle humor, they're accessible for children and perfect for reading aloud.

The illustrations feature simple, geometric shapes, with bright, flat, gradient-free colors, like the backgrounds.

A treasure for reading that can be shared over and over again, and will stimulate every child's imagination.

Reading. How, when, where, with whom, and why? Any place and any time are perfect for reading. Every reader – from the smallest to the biggest – has their own habits. Some people stay up all night until they finish the story. Others love to read in complete silence, far from every distraction. Then there are people who lose themselves in the pages no matter where they are. Some people can't read yet and love being told stories. So, it's just as well that other people love to read stories to them! Standing, sitting, lying down. Alone in a room or out on the stormy sea. From page to page, Attilio's characters show us all the different ways there are to read. And every reader is guaranteed a smile when they find themselves.

- A book dedicated to small readers as well as the big ones who read to the ones who are smaller still
- A book for everyone who believes in the power of stories, who grows through them, who finds others in them, and who, in stories, finds themselves
- Rights sold in German

WORDLESS WONDERS

BETTER TOGETHER

Better Together follows the story of two puppies separated from each other, only to be reunited by the love and kindness of a little girl and her family.

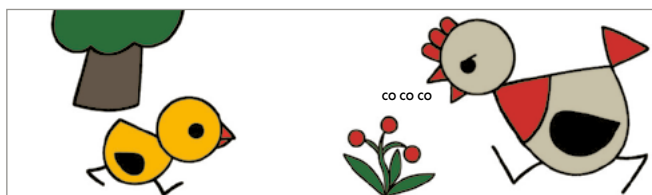

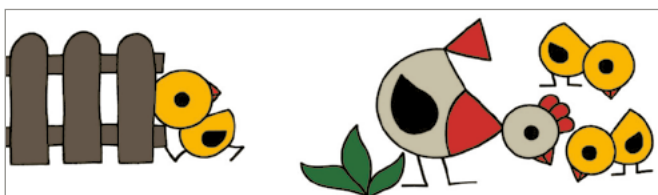

CHEEP CHEEP! WOOF WOOF!

One day, while his mother is not looking, a mischievous little chick ventures out of the coop and meets some new friends. From the goat to the dog, from the frog to the crow, Little Chick learns to imitate the sounds of all the animals he encounters. When he returns home, his mother scolds him for running away. But Little Chick has a surprise for her: he recites all the animal sounds he has learned! Perplexed, his mother leaves, but soon his curious siblings arrive and start chirping «cheep cheep!» That's when Little Chick finally joins in and says «cheep cheep» too, much to everyone's delight!

Animals that think, speak, and behave just like human beings and prone to all their vices and virtues – Aesop’s Fables remain a cornerstone of children’s literature. This collection brings together the most famous fables (“The Fox and the Grapes,” “The Ant and the Grasshopper,” “The Tortoise and the Hare”...) along with some lesser-known gems (“The She-Goats and their Beards,” “The Bald Man and the Fly,” “A Boar and a Horse”...).

The fables are complemented by Attilio’s distinctively minimalist illustrations. Shapes of pure color with enormous communicative power, they create an elegant compositional and chromatic harmony. Marked by their concise, essential style, Sara Marconi’s adaptations make the fables ideal for independent reading as well as to be read aloud as bedtime stories.

- Using essential, up-to-date language, Sara Marconi has made these great classics of literature accessible to new readers while remaining faithful to their original style.
- Marvelous illustrations by Attilio, winner of the 2019 Italian Andersen Award, enhance the fables in an elegant new picture book for everyone

Gek Tessaro, one of the most renowned, eclectic and unpredictable Italian authors and illustrators, winner of the Italian Andersen Award 2010 as Best All-around Author. Being a multi-faceted author, he moves between children's literature, illustration, and theatre. From his interest in "designs that speak, designs that tell stories" comes his "designed theater." Taking advantage of the unimaginable talents of the lighted blackboard, with an original technique, he breathes life into his narratives. His capacity for observation and synthesis spills into theatrical performances that are forceful and captivating. He regularly presents plays in theatres, schools, and libraries throughout Italy. He has participated in numerous festivals and cultural events and collaborates with various Italian theatres.

Chiara Frugoni

Praised Be You

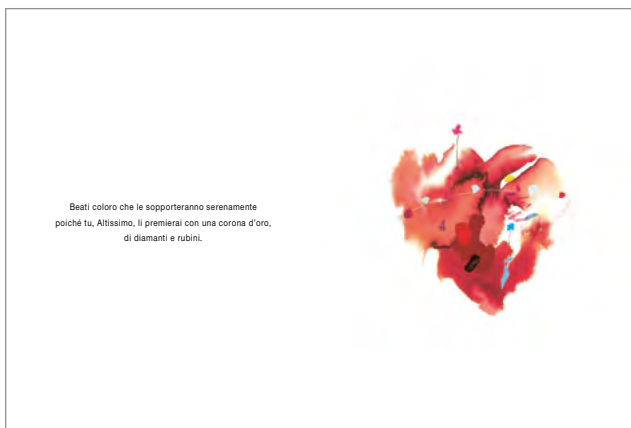

Apparently simple and straightforward, The Canticle of the Sun, a song written by Saint Francis of Assisi in the 13th century, is extraordinarily complex. Chiara Frugoni, a renowned medievalist specializing in the history of the Church and, in particular, Saint Francis, has made the story accessible to readers today so as to convey an important message, one also stressed by Pope Francis: we are the stewards and not the masters of our universe.

- A call to respect and protect our planet and its inhabitants
- A hymn to the beauty of the cosmos, reminiscent of a child's perception of the world
- Serena Viola, an illustrator and visual designer, transforms the richness and vitality of the text into images

The Suitcase of Games

371-21-B

The Montessori Method of Education uses activities aimed at helping children satisfy their need for movement and discovery, while encouraging the development of autonomy. Its effectiveness depends on following a clearly mapped-out approach. This includes the use of tools with precise shapes, sizes, and materials. With this book, the author has responded to the most frequently asked questions by educators and parents regarding the theoretical and practical aspects of Montessori teaching, basing her answers on her extensive experience conducting Montessori refresher courses. The groundbreaking cornerstone of this handbook is the section dedicated to making Montessori materials from scratch, aimed at people who want to introduce these tools into their teaching but are unable to buy them.

SKY ATLAS

O IJA-21-B

Format: cm 30 x 39 - Pages: 48 - Age: 7+
Hardcover
Full colour illustrations: Lucia Scuderi
Published in Italy by Jaca Book

An ambitious and complete work that combines the charm and knowledge of Astronomy with the masterful evocative interpretation of a talented illustrator. The encounter between astronomy and art has given birth to a cross-cultural journey to discover the sky and constellations. The illustrations are accompanied by brief literary and mythological narratives or in-depth scientific information. A contemporary tribute to the iconography of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and to the large atlases which have laid the foundation of cartography, from abraham ortelius to gerhard kremer, to hevelius's star atlas.

- Lara Albanese has won the 2013 Italian Andersen prize for popular science. She is a physicist and has founded Googol, an association promoting science education
- Lucia Scuderi is a specialized children's books illustrator. She won two Italian Andersen prizes. One in 2004 for Best Illustrated Book and the other as 2013 Best Illustrator

Full-colour illustrations by Desideria Guicciardini
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Once again Nicola Cinquetti has amazed readers with a retelling of the play in true theatrical style. Reading the book, it's almost as if you're holding a script that's both dramatic and compelling, but also lighter than the original and complete in all its parts. Desideria Guicciardini transforms the theatrical style of the words into elegant images. With original and surprising choices, the illustrations depict the story as if it were taking place on stage, with the characters playing out the drama against colorful sets and behind-the-scenes views, all set against the backdrop of an Elizabethan theater.

- Nicola Cinquetti won the 2020 Italian Andersen Prize as Best Author, Desideria Guicciardini was awarded in 2014 as Best Illustrator

ATTO I, SCENA I

Dove scoppia una rissa tra Montecchi e Capuleti

Era domenica mattina e due servi della famiglia Capuleti, Sansone e Gregorio, camminavano per la piazza del mercato armati di spada con un ghigno sinistro sul volto. I loro sguardi correvano da un lato all'altro della piazza per osservare chi andava e chi veniva; le loro mani non desideravano altro che stringere l'impugnatura e sfoderare la spada. In breve: cercavano rissa. Speravano di incontrare dei servi di casa Montecchi per provocarli e trascinarli in un combattimento.
I Capuleti e i Montecchi, le due famiglie più potenti di Verona, erano in lotta da tanto di quel tempo che nessuno, ormai, si ricordava più il perché. O meglio, ciascuno se lo ricordava a modo suo, mettendo se «Ma la legge di Mantova ci vieta di venderla: chi lo fa è punito con la morte».

Romeo reagì con una risata amara.
«E tu vuoi dirmi che preferisci rispettare la legge e morire di fame, piuttosto che darmi il veleno e metterti in tasca i soldi?».
Lo speziale scosse appena la testa.
«La mia povertà mi costringe a fare quello che non vorrei» si giustificò. Poi andò a prendere il veleno, lo consegnò a Romeo e gli disse che bastava scioglierlo in acqua e berlo: la morte sarebbe arrivata all'istante.
Romeo, allora, mise il denaro nella mano dello speziale.
«Tieni, prenditi l'oro, il peggiore dei veleni, che in questo mondo schifoso uccide mille volte di più dei tuoi poveri intrugli: alla fine sono io che do a te del veleno, non tu a me. Comprati qualcosa da mangiare e metti su qualche chilo. Addio».

Generous

There are princes who were born princes, who would be happier if they could be mechanics. Only they don't know it, and they live unhappily and dissatisfied. The encounter between the capricious prince Marcello and the custodian Generoso transforms the power of the prince into an exercise illuminated by creativity.

On the island of Calibella reigns Prince Marcello with the chamberlain Benedetto. In accordance with the Prince's desire, the island has become a lump of cement. Only the park of the prince's castle is not included: it is the only place where there is still greenery on the island, but it is forbidden for children to go there. The day in which the long-term custodian of the warehouse of abandoned cars decides to leave the island, Marcello goes around the whole island to try to find a substitute. A man who appears to not be very bright comes forward. His name is Generoso. In that huge warehouse of broken-down cars, he builds a huge and colourful spaceship in no time, which becomes a wonderful game for children. The jealous prince asks Generoso to leave him the spaceship. In order to have it, he is willing to give up anything and everything. Generoso accepts, but in exchange asks to become the prince of Calibella.

Dad, Mom, a four-year-old sister, and a cat called Alarm. Miriam, whom everyone calls Mimmi, has a completely normal family. But they're far too noisy! They argue at least three times a day. They scream, they cry, they throw shoes and toast. And then they make up with tears, loud apologies, and laughter... more noise, in other words! Far, far too much! On one particularly noisy evening, everyone ends up wishing the same wish. They look up at the sky and cry, "How I wish you'd all SHUT UP!" As if by magic, the wish turns into reality. On the next day, all sorts of weird things start happening. Mom stops screaming and becomes strangely patient. Dad stops grumbling – but he also forgets how to give tickles. Stella, the little one, stops refusing to eat anything different. And Mimmi tidies up her room without being asked. The two sisters both stop throwing tantrums about going to bed. But they also don't feel like playing and spend their time just sitting on the sofa, as if someone has switched them off. Only Alarm, the cat, seems to be resistant to the spell. MAGIC? Well, a wand was involved...

- A story that talks about the relationship between parents and teenagers
- Brilliant humour in an engaging book that can be read in one go

Clio is definitely a girl of her times: she loves everything that's new and even has her own personal robot, Rob. In the time in which she lives, the old-fashioned objects that her father, Astolfo, is fond of, have been relegated to a very unusual place: The Museum of Lost Objects, where it is possible to observe boring and outdated things like books, forks, chess sets, umbrellas...

The day that Dad brings Clio and Rob to visit the museum, however, she discovers that the everyday life objects of a lost time have a lot to say for themselves. And through the many stories, and secrets, and inventions, she and Rob experience an amazing trip through time in search of the story of humanity.

- A book that everyone (adults and children) should have, to know the stories of the everyday objects we use
- Extraordinarily vivid illustrations that complement those of a graphic novel
- Highly educational and reliable contents, that lead with light humour

WHAT A MESS PETIT BOUDINI!

Far beyond the Alps, there is a small Kingdom: it doesn't appear on the maps; you can only get there by following your nose.

Petit Boudini is a very skilled pastry chef, small, round and pink, just like a strawberry pastry. He lives in the Kingdom of Tartaten, ruled by Queen Patachou. The Queen adores Petit Boudini's creations: everyone knows that he makes the best pastries in the world. Queen Patachou is not only greedy, but she is also bratty and spoiled: she demands everything immediately. And anyone who annoys her, or doesn't immediately satisfy her requests, spends at least half an hour hanging upside down. Petit Boudini will have to deal with the Queen's tantrums: it will be a difficult task, but our little hero is generous, talented, intelligent and cunning - as well as having a mountain of pastries on his side.

Format: 14 x 20 - Pages: 120 - Ages: 7+

- The protagonist of these stories is an irresistible character who immediately creates warmth in children and parents
- The writing style is fresh and lively, combined with the pastry chef's fantastical stories, making for a very easy read
- The text is characterised by recurring writing formulas, to help the reader gain confidence in independent reading

Gli ordini fioccano numerosi: la signorina Ecler ordina pasticcini alle mandorle, il signor Macaron ordina pasticcini al cioccolato, il droghiere ordina pasticcini alla cannella, la fornaia pasticcini allo zenzero, il lattaio pasticcini alla straciatella... e via così.

Le ombre si allungano e le nuvole nel cielo da bianche diventano rosa e poi blu. La sera arriva in fretta nel piccolo Regno di Tartaten. Quando gli abitanti del paese hanno finito di ordinare i pasticcini, nella piazza è già buio e i lampioni a forma di tartelletta si accendono uno a uno.

Solo in quel momento Petit Boudini si ricorda di non aver consegnato i dieci vassoi di pasticcini alla Regina Patasciù.

— Chissà come sarà arrabbiata! — sospira dandosi una manata sulla fronte.

19

La Regina Patasciù, con il pasticcino al tè nero sotto il naso, apre gli occhi, si stracchia, lo divora in un boccone e per poco non azzanna due dita di Petit Boudini. Poi, rendendosi conto di ciò che è successo, inizia a strillare:

— Quel furfante del signor Putpurri ha rubato tutti i miei pasticcini, le torte e i bignè!

Ma Petit Boudini sa perfettamente cosa fare. Corre di nuovo nel suo laboratorio e prepara un altro pasticcino speciale. Ne basterà solo uno questa volta.

— Etcìù! Etcìù! Etcìù! — starnutisce Petit

Budini mescolando alcune spezie. — Etcìù! Etcìù! — continua montando a neve la panna. — Etcìù! — conclude impastando tutto quanto.

Il raffreddore scompare quando finisce di preparare il suo secondo capolavoro: un pasticcino in grado di attirare i furfanti.

Petit Boudini lo annusa soddisfatto. Non esiste al mondo un profumo più profumato di quello del pasticcino speciale di Petit Boudini.

SAVAGE VACATION

57L-22-B

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 248 - Age: 8+
Paperback
B/W illustrations: Giulia Dragone
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Tommy loves soccer and hates the countryside. He has been training for months in order to enter into the best club in the city but, unfortunately, his mother is also the last successor of Uncle Nino, and now she is responsible for looking after his farm.

For Tommy, this summer is going to be true torture! The "vacation", however, takes an unexpected turn when, after being hit in the head, Tommy is immediately able to understand what animals say. From that moment onwards, life at Colle Sole becomes more complicated because of Giulia The Pest, a girl who involves him in a very dangerous investigation.

Uncle Nino's farm will eventually become a wonderful Farm House and Educational Farm that teaches everyone about the wonders and mysteries of nature.

- A protagonist with fears, dreams and emotions with which readers can identify themselves
- A fun and light reading to deal with the theme of respect for nature
- An opportunity to reflect on the interpersonal dynamics, with small or large groups

Prologo

Il pallone era lì, a pochi centimetri dalle sue dita. Tommy si sporse ancora un po' ma riuscì solo a sfiorarlo. Allora mise il piede sul ramo un po' più in alto e si tirò su con le gambe che gli tremavano: non era mai salito su un albero in vita sua. Eppure adesso era lì, a tre metri d'altezza e cercava di recuperare il suo pallone finito fra le fronde del ciliegio per un calcio dato con troppa forza. L'unica cosa da fare era recuperarlo e tornare giù, prima che i suoi genitori lo vedessero. Ma,

Gli animali dello zio Nino

Fra gli animali di cui lo zio Nino si prendeva cura con l'amore di un genitore, la prima di cui parlare è certamente Rosa, la mucca. Con il suo mantello bianco punteggiato da gose macchie nere, Rosa era la classica mucca che potete trovare sulle confezioni del latte o delle mozzarelle. Lo zio l'aveva comprata spendendo una fortuna pur di strapparla al suo destino di bistecca. E Rosa, che forse aveva capito la profondità di quel gesto, aveva sempre ricambiato l'amore di zio Nino con lunghissime e bassissime leccate. Nella stessa stalla dormiva Oreste, l'asino. Anche lui era stato acquistato in età adulta,

SUMMER TALES

41L-21-B

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 160 - Ages: 9+
Paperback
B/W illustrations by Lorenzo Terranera
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Ten stories.
Ten characters.
Ten periods in time.
All with a connecting thread: swimsuits!

Luisa Mattia tells stories about ten different vacations at different times in the twentieth century. All of them are set in the summers that preceded, or followed, major historical events.

The common theme is summer, which Luisa uses as a pretext for talking about love and emotions, and the way they can express themselves. Things might have changed over the years, but the elements of vulnerability and self-discovery are the same as always.

- Each vacation story features a different character – with boys and girls alternating – as they deal with their hopes, dreams, and discoveries
- Portraits of different moments in history that children can then discuss with adults

The whole world's gone crazy over a new game called Warmageddon. Pitting males against females, the battle rages 24 hours a day, all over the world.

Kevin, Samantha, Alika, and Niccolò are all addicted to the new top-trending game. They see each other at school and then see each other again on the battlefield, each hiding behind their avatar. But then something unexpected happens... There's a short circuit, and the four friends are sucked into the app! To get out, they're going to have to dodge arrows, halberds, cannonballs, and lightsabers! But to do that, they're also going to have to learn how to work and talk together by looking into each other's eyes.

As they move from app to app to get back home, they'll find themselves caring deeply about new things and making a new friend, who's also been sucked into the game. Together they're going to have to battle a giant armored spider – a terrible enemy hellbent on taking over the world.

- A riveting adventure story with a hi-tech setting
- The gender rivalry that sparks the story is only resolved by teamwork and acceptance
- A subtle dig at young readers who spend so much of their life staring into their phones

Sofia is a millennial.

"Does that make me a thousand years old? Ten thousand? A hundred thousand?!"

In her own words, she tells the story of three important feelings that warm the hearts of humans. In the process, she introduces us to a cast of human and animal characters – from sardines to rhinos, from Confucius to Buddha, from Plato to Voltaire, from Bacon to Washington.

Written with simplicity and humor, each story leaves an indelible mark and fuel for further thinking. In other words, this is philosophy for kids.

From the heart of the imperial palaces to the notorious alleys of Suburra, up and down the Seven Hills, braving a thousand adventures and facing evil criminals – here's the story of four twelve-year-olds in the Imperial Rome of Emperor Trajan.

In the second century A.D., Imperial Rome was at the height of its splendor, with the city full of great buildings and immense wealth pouring in from the newly conquered lands. But away from the great palaces was Suburra, the poorest and most crowded district of ancient Rome. It's against this backdrop that the adventures of Cecilia, Tito, Danae, and Giulio take place, as they brave all kinds of dangers to protect the weak and restore justice!

- Each story is self-contained
- Activities sections packed full of fun facts and information about the theme of each story, including maps, places, objects, customs
- Books to discover and experience the fascination of ancient Rome!

Elisa Sabatinelli - Iacopo Bruno

My Father Is a Deep Sea Diver

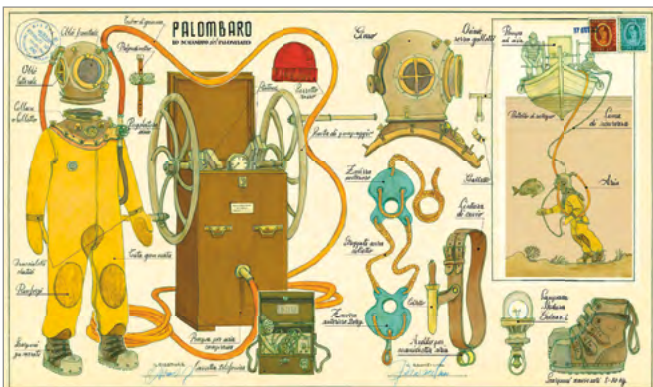

At the center of the story is the Marina, the epicenter of the divers' explorations and the family that founded it. Ettore is the youngest in the family. His dream of becoming a diver, like his father and grandfather, is cruelly destroyed by Amedeo Limonta, an unscrupulous businessman, who builds a fashionable seaside resort right next to the Marina, sending it bankrupt. Ettore's family is forced to move to the city, far from the sea. But what Amedeo Limonta really wants to do is to capture the Pearl, the soul of the sea, and then sell it for a fortune. Ettore is the one who finds it, though, on his eighth birthday. But the Pearl belongs to the sea, which is where it must return. So begins Ettore's mission to put all the elements back into their natural order.

This collection of fun stories celebrates the 50th anniversary of the day we first walked on the moon.

In these eighteen fantastically surreal stories and poems, with color illustrations, you'll get to know a wolf astronaut on Planet Parma Ham, a dad who designs rockets, a fleet of sparkling spaceships, the galactic alphabet, planet Soap (only for people who don't like to rush), the strange case of the Coffee Pot constellation, the very first Martian, and more. This kaleidoscope of stories will take you on a (space) flight of imagination.

- A lighthearted romp that proves that just a little imagination can transform any child into an astronaut
- Humor and fantasy running riot among the stars, moon, and planets
- A kaleidoscope of stories guaranteed to take you on a (space) flight of imagination
- By Andrea Valente, winner of the 2011 Andersen Award for best author/illustrator

Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Every voyage a story; every story a discovery. Do you want to be an astronaut? Do you think you've got what it takes to be an aerospace engineer? Did you ask Santa for a telescope and love looking at the stars? Are you into science fiction and would like to live on the moon? Have you ever heard of Yuri Gagarin and dream of flying through space? Have you stuck glow-in-the-dark stars and planets on your bedroom ceiling? And would you like to spend a night at a hotel in space? If you answered "Yes!" to even one of these questions, here's a collection of space stories that's perfect for boys and girls like you.

- An exciting, educational read about the visions, failures, and conquests of science
- A book written by two experts in space exploration
- A series of compelling stories that combine historical information, news reports, real-life accounts, and scientific information about astronauts

Ettore Perozzi a physics graduate, works in the fields of planetary science, space exploration, and science education. He writes articles and books on astronomy for children and adults. Asteroid number 10027, Perozzi, was named after him.

Simonetta Di Pippo is astrophysicist and the current Director of the United Nations Office for Outer Space Affairs (UNOOSA). She was knighted by the Italian President in 2006. In 2008, the International Astronomical Union assigned the name "dipippo" to asteroid 21887, in recognition of her effort in space exploration.

SATURNINUS

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 248 - Ages: 8+
Paperback
Cover illustration: Alessandro Baronciani
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

What do you do when your parents decide to migrate to find work? If you're twelve, you probably just do as you're told. Even if your parents have decided to move to another planet.

So begins the story of Saturninus Grapeshot, a skinny skater boy with messy hair. At his new school, he's the only kid with pink skin. On Dakron, everyone is green. It's difficult to be different. It sucks to have to learn a new language. And it's really hard when all you want is acceptance but everyone treats you with suspicion. Fortunately, Saturninus makes some friends who couldn't care less about where he's from or what color his skin is! And, luckily for him, there's a hockey-board championship coming up that will let Saturninus prove to all the Dakronian bullies – who think they're pretty hot hockey-boarders – how there really is strength in diversity.

- A compelling, brilliant book that looks at the diversity issue with a good dose of humor
- A look at friendship in a science fiction setting
- By the multifaceted Nicola Brunialti, author of Sammy the "Professional Liar"

Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

With plenty of chitchat and the odd run-in with that bully Adolfo, Fabio's and Sandrino's summer is passing by uneventfully. That is, until an unexpected and incredible event turns it into something unforgettable. A strange truck arrives in the city with a dead whale in the back that you can pay to see. But is it really dead? Together with his friends, Fabio soon discovers that the truck is hiding a secret. Fabio's uncle Mario is an alcoholic former police commissioner who was confined to a wheelchair after a stroke. The boy is convinced, though, that he was really injured when he heroically foiled a robbery. With the help of Uncle Mario, the kids face a race against time to undo the plans of an unscrupulous businessman and return the giant creature to the sea. The story is set in the '70s and told in the first person by Fabio.

- Two enterprising kids, an eccentric uncle, and a whale calf that must be saved
- A compelling story that weaves together laughs and daring adventures
- A diverse cast of characters confronts disability in a natural, humorous way in a story that will resonate with everyone

Fabrizio Altieri is a teacher with a degree in mechanical engineering. As a child, he wanted to become an inventor, to be able to make people happy. He has found out that the only machine that brings happiness is called "book".

Marvin is just an average kid: a bit absent-minded, a bit naughty, and with a bit of a tendency to come last in everything. He certainly doesn't look much like a hero, and he doesn't know the first thing about fighting battles, finding treasures, or breaking evil spells. Because the Parchment says he is HERO, Gil, Britta and Todd summon him to join the Company of the Distant Lands: together they will defend the Magic Shire against danger. Giacomo is a smart, inquisitive boy. He's got a big mop of hair on his head and a strange phobia: geometry! It's his worst enemy. Or so he believes. Giacomo also adores stories, especially ones about Ancient Greece and its heroes. He lives in Syracuse, the same city as Archimedes, and never dreams that one day the two will be friends. But then it happens: Every so often the great scientist talks to Giacomo from across the centuries to tell him the story of his life and his inventions, giving the boy new inspiration. He teaches Giacomo to keep one eye on the everyday and one on the infinite, one on numbers and one on the stars. And Giacomo makes plenty of discoveries for himself, to a cry of "Eureka!"

Sara is ten and lives in Rome. She's full of life and ideas, and much more alert than most of the other kids. Her sense of justice and sensitivity, though, make her see things differently and feel things more intensely. Sometimes, more painfully. And there are a lot of things that make her feel restless and sad, which means that sometimes the bad thoughts take over.

Luckily, Sara isn't alone. She has two fantastic friends and her parents (far from perfect, of course). But she's also got a big sister who studies philosophy. She's the first one to tell Sara about Giordano Bruno, a 16th-century philosopher who could never keep quiet in the face of injustice and abuse. Will he be able to give her some of his courage? Sara's encounter with Bruno and philosophy will potentially take her a long way.

Cristina Nenna lives and works in Rome, where she studied creative writing for children. She organizes book readings, presentations, and workshops in schools, libraries, and at festivals. Her books include Fatù and the Wishing Star (Valentina Edizioni) released under the patronage of the Italian Committee for UNICEF, Monsieur Lavoisier and the Secret of Transformation (VerbaVolant Edizioni), and Zak (Valentina Edizioni), which was also translated into Chinese.

GEPPETTO, TORNATO A CASA, COMINCIA SUBITO A FABBRICARSI IL BURATTINO E GLI METTE IL NOME DI PINOCCHIO. PRIME MONELLERIE DEL BURATTINO.

La casa di Geppetto era un'unica stanza che prendeva luce da un sottocielo. La mobilia era costituita da uno sgabello malfermo, un letto scanalato e un tavolino rotondo. Nella parete in fondo c'era un camino con il fiasco acceso e sopra una pentola che bolliva. Ma il fiasco e la pentola erano dipinti. Appena entrato Geppetto prese gli attrezzi per costruire il suo burattino.

"Lo voglio chiamare Pinocchio", disse tra sé e sé. "Questo nome gli porterà fortuna. Ho conosciuto una famiglia intera di Pinocchi: Pinocchio il padre, Pinocchio la madre e Pinocchi i ragazzi, e tutti se la passavano bene. Il più ricco di loro chiedeva l'elemosina". Poi cominciò a lavorare e, fatta la faccia, intagliò i capelli, la fronte e gli occhi. Figurarsi la meraviglia quando si accorse che

"Qui non c'è grazia. Se non brucia te, brucia Arlecchino, perché l'arrotto lo voglio ben cotto".

"In questo caso," gridò fieramente Pinocchio "non è giusto che Arlecchino muoia al posto mio. Gendarmi, gettate me nel fiasco". Tutti i burattini iniziarono a piangere. Perfino i gendarmi non riuscirono a trattenere le lacrime.

Mangiafuoco fece la faccia cattiva, mise il braccio deciso a non cedere. Poi starnutì, una volta, due volte. Poi aprì le braccia e disse a Pinocchio:

"Tu sei un bravo ragazzo. Vieni a dormire un bacio".

Pinocchio si arrampicò su per la barba e baciò il naso del burattinaio.

"Dunque la grazia è fatta?" domandò con un filo di voce Arlecchino.

"La grazia è fatta" disse Mangiafuoco. "Per starvelo mi rassegherò a mangiarvi l'arrotto mezzo crudo".

Alla bella ostia i burattini cominciarono a saltare e a ballare. Di contentezza ballarono fino all'alba.

THE ISLAND OF MYTHS

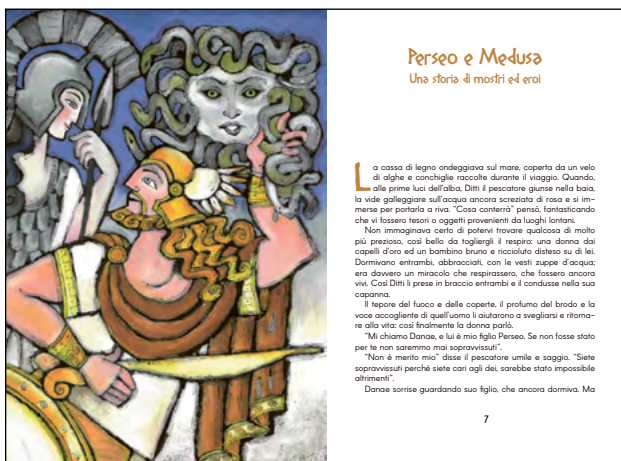

04VV-22-B

Format: cm 17 x 24 - Pages: 112 - Age: 8+
Paperback w/flaps
Color illustrations by Marcella Brancaforte
Published in Italy by VerbaVolant

An alchemy of creative and contradictory elements that has existed since the dawn of humanity, myths are a place where thoughts, feelings, images, and atmospheres take form. Despite being very ancient, they will always live on, provided there's someone to tell them. When that happens, as powerful as a dream or a distant memory, they spring into life, take on new meanings, and resonate with the present day.

This richly illustrated book contains stories of mythological characters connected with Sicily. Most people will know all these myths, although some of the details will be quite new.

- The author and illustrator were finalists in the 2018 Andersen Italia award with the book Il dono degli dei (The gift of the gods)
- The author is a writer, Greek scholar, and cultural communicator and popularizer. She creates tours, plays, and narrative performances dedicated to myths and the soul of places
- The book features a carefully crafted graphic design and a removable postcard incorporated into the cover

TWICE IN LOVE

Olivia is about to move cities and is worried about losing Miki, the boy she is secretly in love with. On their first date, she chooses to let him know about her feelings, but his friends make fun of her. With the harsh naivety of their age, his two friends pretend to serenade her and highlight her less positive physical attributes and the impossibility of her being able to go out with their friend. Olivia escapes, mortified and hurt. The move away allows her to start over again, positive and confident...

She tells her new classmates that she has a boyfriend in Rome. In doing so, she decides to stay out of any 'romantic games', she doesn't allow the possibility for new love.

In the meanwhile, she concentrates on new friendships, but things don't go as planned here either.

Olivia is alone again and she learns to read the world differently, on the basis of a code that she has long tried to ignore in order to be accepted; welcome her weaknesses, and begin to rebuild herself.

Billy Bologna's Incredible Night

72L-23-B

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 112 - Age: 9+
Paperback w/flaps
Full-colour illustrations by Francesco Fagnani
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Billy is the son of the caretaker at a sports stadium in which a gigantic domino run made of millions of tiles has been constructed. It is the fruit of the long and meticulous labour of Matamoto, a formidable Japanese master who only speaks in haiku. Tomorrow, the installation will finally be on show to the public. The night before the event, Billy goes to see the work in secret: enchanted, he makes one misstep and.... taptaptap! The dominoes fall. Billy is desperate; Matamoto will kill him with his sword. There is nothing left to do, so in the middle of the night, he flees to an island on which he can hide.

Arriving on the beach, Billy meets Angelho, a scruffy young man dressed in white. He has a magic flute which he uses to enchant animals. The boy suggests to Billy that they lure millions of crabs out of the sea; they will be the ones to re-set the dominoes. After several capers, it seems like Billy and Angelho have made it; the crabs have re-set all the tiles! But things become complicated again, due to a pair of slightly deceitful crustacean vendors, who ruin everything... Dawn is approaching and Billy has little time left to remedy the damage before daybreak...

Published in Italy by Marietti Junior

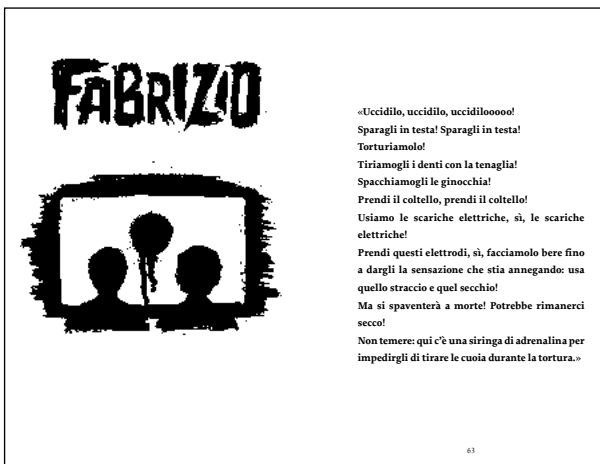

Ten stories. Ten kids. Ten cases connected to a threat, a danger, a crime. It begins as a game. But it is a brutal game, that traps the people who are in it. And leaves you without hope... Until a light turns on that shows the way to the exit.

RAW

THE TRUE STORIES THAT NO ONE TELLS YOU

Each story opens with a shocking scene that has a series of consequences, often brutal, but all shockingly true. Martina, whose pyjama party turns into an alcoholic challenge. Fabrizio, trapped in a virtual world of pure violence. Elena's intimate photo exposed to the world. Antonio, lured by an unknown adult. Francesca, pushed by an internet challenge to gamble her own life... The author wants to tell the truth about situations that no one wants to talk about, to let young readers recognize danger and find the tools to face up against it.

- This book can conquer young readers' hearts because it deals with authentic facts, in a sympathetic way
- The cases are all founded in the roots of the author's experience, the Police Inspector
- The author regularly meets school children to talk about bullying, violence, marginalisation, drugs and danger
- Shortlisted for the Children Strega Award 2022

Ma si spaventerà a morte! Potrebbe rimanerci secco!
Non temere: qui c'è una siringa di adrenalina per impedirgli di tirare le cuoia durante la tortura.»

nasosti dietro l'angolo, è pronta a uscire allo scoperto e a entrare nelle loro vite.
La paura che finisce in tragedia è tanta, è troppa: l'ansia li spinge a urlare, tutti insieme, disordinatamente.
«Via di là!»
«Scappate!»
«Non lo fate!»
«Giù! Presto!»
«Andrea, nooooo!»
È un groviglio di voci disperate: quello che arriva nel cervello. Giusto in tempo per farli zitolare giù dai binari.

Mi ha fatto piacere sapere che hanno inserito anche il mio numero di telefono, nel gruppo WhatsApp "Quelli di Crudo", visto la loro propensione a cacciarsi nei guai.
Ho parlato con il capostazione: ha fermato il treno. Non sarebbe partito fino a che i ragazzi non avessero messo in salvo Andrea e Andrea.
Questa volta, non hanno avuto bisogno di me: hanno fatto tutto da soli.
Hanno capito come combattere le ombre.
Stasera posso dormire tranquilla.
E forse troverò anch'io il coraggio di spegnere la luce, questa volta.

 Paperback w/flaps
 Illustrations by Paolo Marabotto
 Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

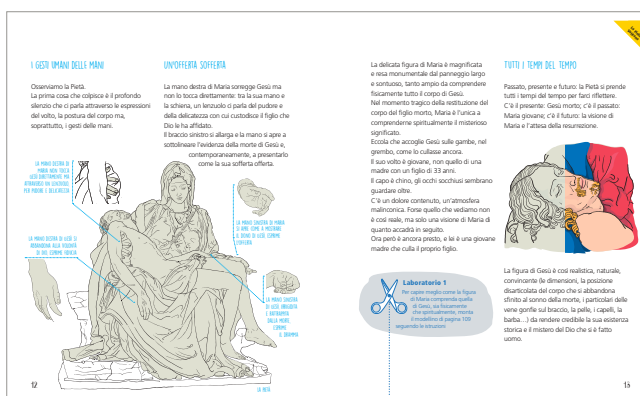

Paolo Marabotto explains how Michelangelo's art works. He talks about its main characters and how to interpret them, but he does it in an absolutely innovative way that creates a sense of wonder and a level of understanding that immerses readers in Michelangelo's world.

A new approach to Michelangelo's art through his 7 most famous works:

- Madonna della Pietà
- David
- The Sistine Chapel ceiling
- The Last Judgment
- The tomb of Pope Julius II
- Rondanini Pietà
- The Deposition

Marabotto hasn't written a historical reconstruction of Michelangelo's art but has created an overall vision on multiple levels – artistic, historical, theological, personal, spiritual – that gives us a better understanding of one of the most versatile and complex artistic geniuses of all time.

- An art handbook that provides an overall vision of Michelangelo's art as well as closeups on the hidden details to understand their sometimes surprising meanings
- Each chapter focuses on one of the seven masterpieces so readers can understand and experience how each one works
- The book is aimed at teachers and students interested in experiencing a new approach to art education, as well as art lovers of any age

100 ARTISTS

THAT LEFT THEIR MARK

From Giotto to Dalí, from Picasso to Frida Kahlo, passing by Leonardo, Monet and Van Gogh... to Banksy and Marina Abramović: 100 portraits, 100 stories of artists from various historical eras that can be read as a long story of creativity. The protagonists are men, women and the many masterpieces created thanks to their talent, but also to their passion, to their determination and also to their capacity to innovate. As a result of errors, difficult moments, funny episodes and entertaining choices, without worrying about the obstacles, these artists found a way to make their way of expressing themselves new, revolutionizing rules and conventions of the time. Each one of them entered into the history of figurative art, sometimes in a confrontational way, and this can be a source of inspiration for young people. In the illustrations created independently by Pia Valentinis and Giancarlo Ascari, the portraits of painters, sculptors, architects, designers and performers are accompanied by elements of context to zoom in on the era and style of each and every artist. In addition, there are the museums and online resources in which the artists' works can be found.

13 stories, 10 key concepts, 1 theme:
 doing good for others

If someone asked you to name the meanest person you know, who would you say? It's easy to remember the people who, throughout history, have done a lot of harm. It's more difficult to remember the people who've done a lot of good – even though there are lots of them. And these people are from every era, every society, and every culture. They existed and still exist. This book tells the stories of some of them. Original and factual, the book throws light on ethical issues that touch the minds and hearts of young people.

- Children will be stimulated by the endless and surprising ways people have done good for others and our planet
- Explores ethical themes that are often mistakenly considered to be too difficult or unsuitable for young readers
- Strongly supported by science and scientific method
- Reasons to avoid simplistic answers and easy virtues, and restore the complexity of issues that affect everyone, regardless of age and situation

Henri Dunant
 Un'idea che ha cambiato il mondo

25 giugno 1859, Castiglione delle Stiviere, Mantova, Italia

Le dolci colline a sud del Lago di Garda annunciarono a Henri Dunant che la destinazione del suo viaggio d'affari era ormai prossima. Era partito alcuni giorni prima da Ginevra, la sua città, per incontrare Napoleone III e chiedere la sua intercessione. I Dunant erano un'agiate famiglia di commercianti svizzeri. Possedevano una società agricola in Algeria, che all'epoca era una colonia francese, in cui volevano avviare la produzione di cereali. Necessitavano di concessioni per la lavorazione di terreni e per la loro irrigazione, che il governo algerino non voleva accordare. Per superare questo ostacolo, Henri Dunant aveva deciso di parlare personalmente con Napoleone III, allora impegnato alla testa del suo esercito in Italia contro gli Austriaci. L'Italia, infatti, era nel pieno della sua Seconda Guerra di Indipendenza, per respingere dalle proprie terre la dominazione straniera. Henri Dunant giunse a Castiglione delle Stiviere e ben presto si rese conto di essere finito in un vero e proprio girone infernale.

Norman Borlaug
 Il rivoluzionario verde

1931, Minneapolis, USA

Norman Borlaug giunse a Minneapolis con pochi soldi e molti sogni. L'arrivo in città fu però uno shock e lo colpì profondamente: le strade erano affollate di persone disperate, che elemosinavano ai passanti qualcosa da mangiare e che dormivano su fogli di giornale sparsi lungo i marciapiedi. Quella situazione era il risultato della grande depressione economica, iniziata nel 1929, che ancora flagellava gli Stati Uniti e molti altri Paesi: il cibo costava sempre di più e le persone avevano sempre meno soldi. Fu in quel momento che Norman Borlaug promise a se stesso che avrebbe fatto qualcosa per quelle persone. Cosa, di preciso, ancora non lo sapeva. D'altronde, il suo campo erano le piante e l'agricoltura, non di certo l'economia, tant'è che era arrivato a Minneapolis proprio per studiare Agraria all'università. L'occasione si presentò due anni dopo, nel 1933, quando i soldi che aveva messo da parte per finanziare i suoi studi finirono. Norman dovette abbandonare l'università e cominciò a lavorare per il Civilian Conservation Corps, un

Twins Hans and Greta are spending their vacation at the Edelweiss Camp for girls and boys up to twelve. Everyone knows that during their last year at the camp, kids end up having remarkable experiences. So, the twins are dying to find out what's going to happen to them. They imagine all kinds of things, but turning into a pair of three-meter giants isn't one of them! Terrified, they run away to hide, and a mystery soon starts to circulate about their disappearance. The newbie giants, though, discover that there are certain advantages to being so big. They're fast, strong, and can go places that others just can't. Finally, the camp director reveals the secret of Camp Edelweiss: kids who are ready to grow up turn into legendary creatures – including mermaids, fauns, gnomes, elves, as well as giants – but then, with time, go back to normal. As adults, though, they'll keep just a trace of the fantastic creature they once were.

- Fantasy, adventure, and self-knowledge – a metaphor for every big and small change that happens as you grow up
- A novel about self-acceptance and the importance of remembering where we come from

James

AND THE EYES OF THE GIANT

46L-21-B

Egypt, 1815 – James Curtin, a 15-year-old Irish orphan, leaves for Egypt as a servant of Giovanni Belzoni, who's traveling to Cairo to sell his most sophisticated hydraulic machine to the pasha. When the deal falls through, Belzoni sets off on an archaeological expedition to find a huge granite bust. James falls in love with archeology as well as Ancient Egypt. The labyrinthine necropolis, the ruined temples hidden under the shifting sands, and the mysterious language of the hieroglyphs all fire up his curiosity. Despite his fears, and a string of unexpected events, James not only plays a key role in the success of the expedition, but also in a whole series of discoveries.

Eddie has decided: he will be silent and almost invisible in middle school, like a large succulent. But the Cactus Plan goes awry the day the students must organise their end-of-year show, and he finds himself proposing a performance... inspired by drag queens! With the sole support of an art teacher and his mother, who has always cheered him on (even in the worst moments of her illness), Eddie puts together a bizarre group of aspiring artists: Chip, an overweight, marginalised dancer; Viola, who dreams of being Elvis; Naomi, who performs in her wheelchair; and their make-up artist, Cloe. Plus, Kurt, the bully son of the math teacher, dragged along as punishment. With his scruffy, but fierce team, Eddie discovers how difficult it is to realise dreams of feathers, sequins, and freedom. He will have to decide whether to give up and conform or let the cascade of colours dancing inside him courageously explode forth.

- Make your colours known. Even when the world wants you in black and white
- A simple and profound novel that amuses, moves, and teaches us to love ourselves and others, starting with what makes us different

AROUND THE FIRE, IN THE DARK

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 184 - Age: 9+
Paperback
B/W illustrations by Fabio Sardo
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Ben is 15 years old. He is closed and arrogant; his parents don't know how to deal with him; he wants them to just disappear. One morning his dad puts him on a bus and says goodbye with just a few words: «This isn't a holiday. It's a school of life. I am sure that you will return with many things to tell us. Goodbye».

Ben ends up in an institute for kids with disabilities. Together with Demetrio, an educator, he has to look after Carlotta, Achille, Gilda and Milo. During an excursion in the woods, something happens: two unknown people argue with Demetrio and they hurt him. Ben, who sees everything, takes a truck and escapes with the children, which is followed by the aggressors. Exciting events follow: the adrenaline of the escape, a fiery encounter, the darkness of the woods at night. Ben's courage brings everyone to safety. In the darkness of those woods, an unexpected awareness illuminates him: those defenseless kids trust him. The difficult and serious Ben has become attentive, protective and affectionate. Where there used to be nothing, now is a bridge. For the first time, through an unknown alphabet, Ben and the other kids are really communicating.

- A novel that talks about internal growth and the difficulty adolescents have in communicating with the world around them
- A story to help look at one's behaviour towards disability and the promotion of inclusion
- A stimulus to help take your life into your own hands

Ex- teacher, actor, director and playwright, Aquilino Salvatore (in art Aquilino) is originally from the province of Varese. He has always been sensitive to the theme of disability and inclusion, he has published novels for adults with some of the biggest Italian publishing houses.

Fabio Sardo, an Italian freelance illustrator based in Milan, works in the children and middle grade books field. He loves doing playful and minimalist illustrations. He graduated from the three-year course of the Milan comics school and then attended a six-month intensive course dedicated to the creative management of traditional publishing, new media and cultural activities, organized by Mimaster Illustrazione and Fondazione Arnoldo e Alberto Mondadori.

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 96 - Age: 9+
Paperback w/flaps
Cover: Alessandro Baronciani
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Nine objects that occupy centerstage in nine teenagers' lives that cause anger, resentment, jealousy, envy, laziness, and apathy.

Contradictions and conflicts, thought and emotions, misbehavior and testing limits – for these apparently perfect, but confused, teenagers, it's a constant balancing act between towing the line and going wild.

Every character is open about their faults and doesn't try to justify them. These imPERFECT kids aren't ashamed. And they're both perceptive and hardnosed when it comes to the world of the adults who try to control them, blame them, or even disown them for no better reason than they don't understand them.

- Stories told in the first-person by teenagers struggling with "the age between"
- Each object is a symbol of a rebellion without a cause that puts the worlds of adults and teenagers on a collision course
- Luisa Mattia won the Italian Andersen Award for best writer in 2008

Luisa Mattia graduated in Education with a thesis in Theory and Techniques of Mass Communication, Luisa is a teacher, journalist and writer. Boys versus Girls

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 104 - Ages: 8+
Paperback
B/W illustrations by Francesco Fagnani
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Laura and Luigi share a desk at school. And they just can't stand each other! It's the same for everyone else in their class: the boys are on one side and the girls on the other, in two different, divided worlds. According to the boys, the girls just complain about everything all the time. They write with stupid glitter pens and all they ever think about is clothes. According to the girls, all the boys ever do is work out new ways to be idiots – including playing pranks with glue – and all they ever think about is football. When a library book that someone has scribbled all over is found under a girl's desk, it spells trouble for the whole class. The girls blame the boys, and the boys blame the girls. But the teacher isn't putting up with any of it: if the culprit doesn't own up, she's going to punish the whole class. Laura, Luigi, and their classmates are going to have to get over their prejudices and become united.

- A story that's bound to engage everyone
- A book that leads children beyond typical boy-girl rivalry through the pleasure of reading
- Encourages a spirit of collaboration not only between friends but also within families

Mariapia De Conto born in Pordenone in 1957, specializes in children's literature. She conducts training courses and reading activities. She's published several books for primary school children, including Tutti in Biblioteca!, published by Nicola Milano Editore. In 2009, her novel Come rondini in volo was published by Lineadaria.

Format: cm 13 x 18 - Pages: 216 - Ages: 8+
 Hardcover
 Full colour illustrations by Andrea Antinori
 Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

When you make a choice, you're deciding who you are.

Daryl Davis, an African-American pianist, convinced 200 people members to leave the Ku Klux Klan. In an example of amazing cooperation, the Leicester football team won the English Premier League against all odds. Carlo Angela, father of the Italian journalist Piero Angela, forged the identity and medical records of many Jewish people to save their lives. Phineas Gage, a quiet, generous railway worker, became violent and out of control after a brain injury...

Compelling true stories that look at ethical questions and stimulate children to question themselves and see their choices in terms of fundamental values to inspire their actions.

With the spirit of a philosopher – but without the technical jargon – the author looks at the meaning of some important concepts.

- 15 stories inspired by key ethical concepts, selected by a philosopher and journalist to encourage children to look within
- A book that generates thinking and questioning, for sharing at home or in the classroom
- Perfectly complements recommended school reading lists

Chiara Segré a biologist, has been a science communicator and popularizer for over ten years. In charge of scientific supervision at the Veronesi Foundation since 2010, she has written books and novels for children and young people, many of which have been translated for abroad. Her books are published by Camelozampa, Verbavolant, Sonda, Notes edizioni, and Edizioni Corsare.

Marco Annoni is involved in bioethics. After a degree in philosophy and two PhDs, he was a postdoc at Harvard Medical School. He currently works with both the Veronesi Foundation and the CNR, where he is a research fellow in bioethics. Since 2015, he has been editor-in-chief of The Future of Science and Ethics, a new scientific journal published by the Veronesi Foundation's ethics committee.

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 168 - Ages: 10+
Paperback with flaps
B/W illustrations: Alessandro Baronciani
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

It's 2093, and a team of scientists is working in their lab to create mutated beings that can resist a dangerous virus.

Gabriel is nine and has lived his entire life in the laboratory. With his almost transparent skin and webbed hands, he knows all too well that he doesn't look human. Nevertheless, he plans a desperate escape into an uncertain future outside the lab.

Luckily, he meets Mark and Noemi, a couple who lives near the laboratory and who lost their own son some years ago. With Gabriel mistreated his whole life, the couple's hugs and caring nature are a new and shocking thing for him.

But there's a spy. For Gabriel, this marks the beginning of a true odyssey – a struggle for survival in which he'll meet all kinds of people, discover that gray area between good and evil, and end up taking part in a mission that's much bigger than him. Through his entire journey, though, he carries a single deep desire: to find a place to call home.

- Dedicated to everyone who's had to fight to find their place in the world
- A story with all the atmosphere of the Netflix series Stranger Things
- Not just a great science fiction story for kids, but also – and in particular – a book with an important message about diversity

Lucia Ventura has a degree in modern literature and teaches elementary school. She's an avid reader and is always sharing her thoughts, feelings, and latest reads with her students. Passionate about children's literature her whole life, Lucia studied at Bottega Finzioni, the fiction writing school founded by Carlo Lucarelli. The surprising Gabriel is her first novel.

HAPPINESS IS PINNED TO YOUR DREAMS

A book that speaks in a clear voice to younger readers about women's rights and their roles in different cultures through ten short stories about ordinary and extraordinary lives. They feature courageous girls as they deal with integration, exclusion, the daily struggle to find their own way in life, identity, and finding their place either in their country of birth or in their adopted country – a place that's not always easy to feel a part of. Brave Amina is from Morocco, cheerful Mina is from Cuba, and studious Ina is from Pakistan. Together with the others, they're the protagonists of tales about real life and their relationships with the adult females they encounter.

- Stories that offer young readers new role models
- Luisa Mattia, a talented author specializing in children's books and winner of numerous awards
- Short, easy-to-read stories

12L-21-B

Format: cm 14 x 20 - Pages: 296 - Age: 11+
Hardcover w/jacket
Cover illustration: Francesca D'Ottavi
Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

Mea, 12 years old, has a passion for gardens, loves chatting with her invisible friend Cooper, observing people and classifying them as animals, and suffers from loneliness. Leaving her mother and brother to take care of a flooding at their home, she will have to move to a distant land, where she will find an aunt-reindeer and many novelties. She will change school, habits and language, but she will learn to find similarities in changes, to forgive imperfections and fall in love. Difficulties will give her strength and energy but also opportunities for a new life.

- A novel of growth, with a star that is more adult than others her age, who proves to be tougher than the many fragile adults she meets
- The very personal writing style of the author and the point of view of this strange protagonist make it a compelling story, with great changes in tone
- A story, which is never rhetorical or stereotypical, about adolescent crisis and differences between cultures, or rather an invitation to find self-confidence

Patrizia Rinaldi lives and works in Naples. After obtaining a degree in Philosophy, she then specialised in theatrical writing. She writes for adults and youngsters and her books have received numerous awards and important recognitions. In 2016, she won the Andersen Award for Best Writer: "For her fine, intense writing, persuasive and precise. For a path that, with heartfelt and diligent caution, intertwines writing for children with fiction for adults. For the tact and sensitivity with which she addresses challenging issues, also constantly making us smile and giving us a lively representation of the world of children."

Andrea Valente

Inventors, Sports Stars, and Explorers

With a sense of humor, lightness, and factual accuracy, Andrea Valente introduces us to the inventors (both known and unknown) who have made important contributions to our world. He untangles the facts from the legends about the sports stars who have helped write the history of sport. And he takes us unto the world of the explorers who have discovered distant lands or overcome enormous challenges. Packed with stories and anecdotes, each book offers both curious and casual readers a perfect balance between fantasy and reality.

- Books that set the imagination on fire by capturing the excitement of the big events in history
- An engaging, easy writing style that's suitable for both strong and weaker readers
- Andrea Valente won the 2011 Andersen Italian Award as Best Author/Illustrator

Did you know that foxes live in city parks? And that crows have a deadly strategy for finding food in the city? And what do white barn owls and haunted houses have in common?

For years, we've seen growing numbers of wild animals in our cities. It is fascinating to discover the way they've adapted to cities that might be very different from their natural environments.

This book brings together some of the most interesting stories and most surprising anecdotes about urban animals. Parrots, birds of prey, swallows, bats, even mosquitoes – all of them star in the different episodes, which describe their characteristics, biology, and survival strategies.

A book that will keep you amazed by nature. Even in the city.

- An "urban safari" told through 15 stories that unveil the wild world hidden in our cities
- An innovative book for readers interested in the animal kingdom that presents animals in an unusual habitat
- Stories of animals that have adapted to urban life told as real adventures, full of unexpected events and plot twists

coppie attaccano il loro e man mano si forma un vero e proprio "condominio" con varie entrate, percorso da tunnel comunicanti e da camere di cova, dove ogni femmina depono le sue 4-5 uova. Tale ammasso di rami – una sorta di grande "fascina", che può arrivare a pesare anche 100 chilogrammi – risulta, però, particolarmente visibile e fa sì che le uova e i piccoli diventino facili prede delle corvae. A Milano, altra città interessata dalla presenza degli esotici parrocchetti fin dalla metà degli anni Cinquanta, un fatto del genere ha causato la scomparsa di una nutrita colonia di parrocchetti monaci che, liberati dall'allora zoo cittadino di Porta Venezia, si erano installati su un grosso cedro del Libano nei limitrofi giardini pubblici, di fronte al Museo Civico di Storia Naturale. Tutti i nidi furono predati dai

Bruno Cignini A zoologist, Bruno works with the "Geo" documentary series on Italian national television, sometimes with screen appearances. He has written over 180 scientific and educational pieces, and has been interested in biodiversity and urban fauna for over thirty years.

Published in Italy by Edizioni Lapis

This book mixes scientific facts with hilarious anecdotes to excite younger and older readers alike. Nature offers so many irresistible curiosities. With his "threads," the author knows just how to tie them together. Everyone will want to know why hordes of lemmings run wildly over the plains of the Tundra every year. And why the An-nurca apple owes its life to horse poo. And what about the infamous Loch Ness Monster? What does it have to do with the deer of the Scottish Highlands?

- A book that stimulates curiosity about nature through humor and captivating storytelling
- Features unusual events not often found in biology books
- A strong focus on the historical and social contexts of the featured events
- The previous book, "Invisible Threads of Nature", is published in German, Spanish and Simplified Chinese
- Rights sold in Simplified Chinese

Gianumberto Accinelli lives in Bologna. He's an entomologist, science writer, and conservationist. Italy's La Repubblica newspaper called him "a great teller of stories about nature". Invisible Threads of Nature (Lapis, 2017) also won a special mention at the 2018 Legambiente Award. His first adult work, a short story about a ray of sunshine, is published by Rizzoli (2018).

Andrea Antinori is one of the most popular children's book illustrators working in Italy today.
